

SENATE TURNS DOWN PRESIDENT'S PROGRAM ON CRUISER BUILDING

MONEY IS VOTED TO START WORK ON THREE SHIPS

Administration Forces Are Defeated by Vote of 49 to 27—Insurgents Urge Delay.

HOUSE EXPECTED TO ACCEPT ACTION

Senate Leaders Predict That Coolidge Will Sign Measure Carrying Provision for Cruisers.

Washington, February 1.—(AP)—President Coolidge's program of deferring construction of three additional scout cruisers, authorized three years ago, was disappointed today by the senate.

The vote was 49 to 27 and developed the unusual situation of all of the insurgent republicans standing with the president. They were joined by eight democrats and a scattering of the Old Guard.

Constituting the clear majority of the entire senate which voted for the cruiser amendment to the annual naval appropriation bill were 24 republicans and 25 democrats.

The senate amendment still has to run the gauntlet of the house, where a similar proposal was voted down recently by a narrow margin after it had been sponsored by the recognized republican leaders.

Senate leaders expect the house to accept the amendment, which would appropriate $1,200,000 for beginning work on the three scouts this year, and the prevailing opinion at the capitol is that Mr. Coolidge will sign the naval bill with this provision in it.

Even if the amended bill becomes a law it would not necessarily follow that work would be started on the additional craft this year, as under the amendment the president could direct the navy department to withhold the letting of bids.

The chief executive has taken the position that the construction of the cruisers at this time is not essential and that it would be the better policy to defer the letting of contracts pending the outcome of the efforts now being made at Geneva to bring about another disarmament conference.

Both Sides Ready.

Both sides of the controversy over the cruisers had their say in the senate last week and the vote on the amendment came today without further debate after Senator Curtis, the majority leader, who stood with the president, had announced he was ready for the test of strength.

The cruiser amendment, which the house rejected several weeks ago on a roll call vote, after having adopted it by a teller count, was sponsored by Representative Tilton, the republican leader, who declared he did not consider it contrary to the president's views. It would have appropriated less than $500,000 to be used to drawing plans and making other preliminary arrangements for construction of the cruisers.

Roll Call.

The roll call follows: For the amendment—Republicans: Bingham, Cameron, Coughlin, Dale, Goff, Gooding, Gould, Hale, Johnson, Keves, McLean, McNary, Mead, Metcalf, Moses, Oldie, Pepper, Phillips, Robinson of Indiana, Schall, Shortridge, Stanford and Watson—24.

Democrats: Ashurst, Bayard, Bratton—27.

Wesleyan Graduate Leads Victorious Chinese Army

Macon, Ga., February 1.—(AP)—Under the leadership of a graduate of Wesleyan college, Mrs. Sun Yat Sen, the Cantonese forces are sweeping northward and will probably be in control of China by spring, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth predicted tonight upon his return from the Orient, where for several months he has had the opportunity of studying the Chinese situation at close range.

The Cantonese, or southern forces, are growing stronger daily, Bishop Ainsworth said, and the Chinese people as a whole seem to be willing to accept the principles of reform for which they are fighting.

The Cantonese are sponsoring the principles of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who was provisional president of the country when the monarchy was overthrown some years ago. Since his death, the southern troops led by the reform element, have been carrying out his program of reform with a seemingly holy fervor, Bishop Ainsworth declared.

The widow of Dr. Sun Yat Sen is a graduate of Wesleyan college and, before her marriage to the Chinese reform leader, was Miss Chung Ling Soong. It is under her direction largely that the Cantonese forces are carrying out the reform movement of her dead husband, Bishop Ainsworth stated. Mrs. Sun Yat Sen is on the executive staff of the Cantonese army, and maintains her headquarters at the front as the troops advance, he said.

"Her position is almost that of a queen among the Cantonese," Bishop Ainsworth said. "She is one of the most powerful factors in the revolt which is taking place in China today."

Speaking of the missionary work in China, Bishop Ainsworth said that he did not believe that the lives of the workers were in any great danger at present, although they were suffering from annoyances due to the revolt and untold inconveniences.

"Although it cannot be denied that the situation in China contains all the elements of a possible world conflagration, reports that are being sent out now are grossly in error on many points," Bishop Ainsworth declared.

Bishop Ainsworth, accompanied by his wife, arrived in San Francisco on the steamship President Lincoln last week, where they proceeded to New Orleans and then to Macon. He and his wife left last July for the Orient, and have traveled extensively in China, Japan, Korea and Manchuria.

"We have traveled 30,000 miles since leaving Macon last July and have had the opportunity to see much of conditions at first hand in China, Japan and Korea," he said. The bishop declared that the present crisis in China had in no way influenced his return to America. "I expect to return to the Orient next summer," he said.

"While here I will be engaged for some months in the special campaign of the Methodist church to raise an extra million dollars that is necessary this year for the maintenance of our missionary work. The conditions are so unusual and the need so great that all of the bishops of the church are now engaged in presenting the appeal at home, those from Europe, South America and Mexico having returned some months ago. It is my purpose to return to the Orient late in the summer to hold another round of conferences," he stated.

Knicker Girl Can Attend School Now

Court Grants Restraining Order to Child Teacher Barred.

Jeffersonville, Ind., February 1.—(AP)—The parade of the "knicker" girl between her home and school, begun last September and continuing until whooping cough interrupted, was ended today.

Virginia Allen, clad in knickers and armed with a court order, may enter school now. Circuit Judge George C. Kopp granted a petition for a temporary restraining order when counsel for Mrs. Faythia Allen, mother of the ten-year-old girl, filed another injunction suit to compel the school authorities to permit the girl to attend school. Hearing was set for February 8.

Denied admittance last September by Miss Margaret Poindeux, the teacher, Virginia made the round trip daily until illness stopped her recently. Virginia was told by the teacher to wear a dress. Her mother contended the child's clothing was proper.

The controversy widened until it included all members of the Clark county board of education, members of which were named in today's court action.

ARKANSAS FLOODS COVER VAST AREA

Body of Harold Summers, 22, Drowned Near Blytheville, Recovered by Searchers.

Little Rock, Ark., February 1.—(AP)—A vast area in Woodruff county, northeast of here, was under water tonight while relief organizations provided food and shelter for 1,500 persons who fled their homes because of the floods which poured through breaks in the White river.

While more than a hundred thousand acres have been swept by the muddy tide and livestock and remnants of unharvested crops have suffered loss, reports of losses of lives in the White river lowlands have been unconfirmed or denied.

The body of Harold Summers, 22, who was drowned near Blytheville Sunday night when a row boat capsized, was recovered by searchers last night. Blytheville is experiencing high water from local streams and lakes.

A refugee and relief headquarters has been established at Cotton Plant, in Woodruff county. Shacks and Arkansas national guard tents tonight were sheltering hundreds who could not be housed in already crowded homes and business structures. Women of Cotton Plant, joining their efforts to those of the guardsmen and Red Cross representatives, are making clothing for the homeless persons. Many left in such haste that all personal property was abandoned.

Highways in the flooded area are under two to four feet of water and homes along the principal routes as well as in the interior are flooded.

The White river torrent continued to sweep tonight through wide gaps in the levees between Cotton Plant and Dixie. The Cache river overflow is adding to the volume of the flood.

Additional tents were sent today to Des Arc by the National Guard headquarters.

Congestion of refugees there is described as acute. The town is without adequate housing facilities. Food and clothing were in demand by homeless families there.

Rescue parties in boats have brought to the various concentration relief camps scores of men, women and children who were taken from house tops, trees and other high retreats where the waters had marooned them.

Superstitious Await Ground Hog Forecast

Superstitious folk who have faith in the groundhog as a weather prognosticator are awaiting today to see if the little fellow decrees the end of winter.

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

Well, all this argument over the freak weather of this winter will be settled today.

With people wearing bathing suits and carrying fans one week, and thawing out radiators and yelling for plumbers to fix frozen pipes the next, it's time for explanations. Happily, that authority of authorities, Old Man Ground Hog, will appear early this morning and relieve the tension.

Meanwhile, much interest centers on the event in Grant park and many will try to catch a glimpse of the little fellow out there.

If the Ground Hog sees his shadow today he will return to his hole, and we'll have six weeks more of winter. If he does not see his shadow, we'll have an early spring, and you can grab your rakes, hoes and shovels and get ready to set out your onions.

This tradition about the Ground Hog is greeted with sneers by scientists, United States weather bureau experts and savants, but we folks who have to stay out in the open spaces pin our faith in the Ground Hog.

We believe in Ground Hog prophecies, oil stock, gold bricks, fundamentalism, palmistry, snake-eating, free suit of clothes advertisements, hellfire and the Anti-Saloon league here in Georgia, and don't give a darn who knows it.

So today, Mr. Ground Hog will appear among his loving disciples and everybody is hoping it will be cloudy so there'll be an early spring, be-

BROWNING TRIAL COMES TO CLOSE

Judge Expected To Delay Decision for One Month. Money Question Will Be Decided Later.

White Plains, N. Y., February 1.—The famous Browning suit to end suits and settle once and for all whether it is worse to be an old man's darling or a young girl's dream reached an armistice today.

The battle of Edward W. Browning, 52, and a millionaire, and his wife, the former Frances Heenan, 16, and gaudily pretty, reached the expected legal impasse after noble efforts of their volunteer and drafted witness. The outcome, both seek legal separation after their six months' wedded misery—will not be known for a month.

Supreme Court Justice A. H. F. Seeger has allowed counsel two weeks to file briefs, and he will likely convene another two in reaching a decision.

Will Decide on Alimony.

And the money question will be decided still later. Justice Seeger may grant the separation. If he does he will then decide upon "Daddy" Browning's capacity to pay and Peaches' legal expectations.

Cheering thousands greeted the overly advertised principals when they left the courthouse in the most hysterical exhibition staged in White Plains streets since the world war came to a close.

Several times the mob of excited citizenry broke through the narrow lanes which police and deputy sheriffs strove to maintain, and threatened to crush the principals and their entourages while they moved inch by inch, Daddy to the blue Rolls-Royce and Peaches to her taxicab.

For words that were salacious and testimony that was primitive, the last day of the Browning suit shocked even the middle-aged women who had clattered each other to get into the courtroom.

Closed Hearing in Future.

And Justice Seeger, more than 60 years old and calmly judicious also announced that he had had enough. "Gentlemen," the jurist announced to counsel at his conclusion, "I was afraid to grant this case a closed hearing because it seemed evident to me that such an action might be misunderstood. But I wish to tell you here and now that any further hearings before me of this kind of a case will be behind closed doors."

Peaches' own attorney, Henry Epstein, then addressed the court, and predicted that in his opinion there would be a law banning open hearings.

SUICIDE OF HUSBAND FOLLOWED BY DEATH OF WIFE FROM SHOCK

LIBERALS ROUTED IN 18-HOUR FIGHT

Many Dead and Wounded Are Left on Field of Battle After Attack on Rivas.

Washington, February 1.—The revolution in the western section of Nicaragua has been broken after an 18-hour battle in which the liberal forces were completely routed, according to a cablegram received at the Nicaraguan legation today from Guadalupe, minister of foreign affairs in the Diaz cabinet.

Many dead and wounded were left on the battlefield and scores of prisoners taken, the message stated.

This marks the first decisive victory of the Diaz forces on the west coast. The text of the cablegram read as follows:

"Liberal rebels attacked the town of Rivas.

"After 18 hours of continuous fighting the liberals were badly repulsed by the government forces, leaving in their hands dead, wounded and many prisoners, as well as a great quantity of arms and ammunition.

"Afterwards the liberals attacked the small town Nandime, which they believed was not strongly defended, but the conservatives were able to rush immediate reinforcements from neighboring towns of Granada and Jinotepi, and after several hours of fighting the liberals were completely defeated and the cavalry of the government forces in pursuit of the disbanded liberal troops.

"After this decisive victory by the government of General Diaz, the revolution in the west section of the country may be considered ended."

FAIRCHILD RESOLUTION IS ENDORSED.

Washington, February 1.—(AP)—Over the protest of its democratic members, the house foreign affairs committee today reported the Fairchild resolution proposing that the house ignore President Coolidge's Nicaraguan-Mexican policy. The vote was 10 to 5.

Representative Connally, democrat, Texas, voted with the republicans for the announced purpose of moving to reconsider the action. This he did, after nearly an hour's heated debate, only to lose, 8 to 6, on a strictly party vote.

The committee rejected, 8 to 7, a proposal by Representative Moore, democrat, Virginia, to call Secretary Kellogg for questioning on the subject. On this motion, Representative Fish, republican, New York, joined with the democrats, who supported it.

SACASA TO BE IGNORED IN EVENT OF VICTORY.

Washington, February 1.—(AP)—Juan B. Sacasa, leader of the liberal faction in Nicaragua, has been notified by the American government that he cannot hope for the recognition of Washington even if his armed campaign to gain control of the country is successful.

He has been told that Adolfo Diaz, recognized here as the constitutional president, will remain the rightful chief executive in the eyes of officials here, until after the legal elections of 1928.

Announcing this development tonight, Dr. T. S. Vaca, the Sacasa agent here, declared that American diplomatic and military pressure against the Sacasa movement had created a situation fraught with "peasimistic foreboding."

The American naval commander, Admiral Latimer, he said, was tightening a strangle hold on the Sacasa army, increasing the likelihood of actual hostilities between that army and the American marines.

VICTIMS

Principals in a tragedy which appalled Atlanta Tuesday, Mrs. Simon I. Weil, who died of shock following discovery of the body of her husband (inset) who committed suicide at the family home, at 934 Washington street early Tuesday morning.

WIFE COLLAPSES AFTER S. I. WEIL DIES BY OWN HAND

Couple Married 35 Years Die Within Few Hours and Will Go Together To Grave.

ILL HEALTH GIVEN AS SUICIDE CAUSE

Wife Faints Upon Discovery of Body and Dies Without Regaining Consciousness.

Suicide, and death from resultant shock, Tuesday culminated what had been a happy married life when Simon I. Weil, prominent Atlanta insurance man, shot himself at his home at 934 Washington street shortly before 9 o'clock, and was followed in death six hours later by his wife, who collapsed when members of her household discovered her husband's body, and never regained consciousness. Mrs. Weil's death was attributed to heart failure.

Members of the Weil household were startled by the shot which ended Mr. Weil's life and rushed to his bedroom where they found his prostrate body with a pistol alongside. Upon witnessing the sight, Mrs. Weil fell in a swoon and despite administration by physicians failed to revive. She died at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Although friends of Mr. Weil were inclined to discountenance suggestion that financial worry had prompted his suicide, it was belief of investigators that the coroner's inquest "is morning would substantiate this theory. He had been in ill health for some weeks," it was learned.

Devoted Couple.

Devotion of the ill-fated couple endured unbroken over nearly two score years. Weil, who was 55 years old, had courted and won his bride 35 years ago when he was turning 20 and she 18. Through adversity they had lived together, sharing joy and sorrow.

Friends stated they knew Mr. Weil had been depressed for several weeks but thought it was due to ill health. Coroner Paul Donohoe will hold an inquest at 9 o'clock this morning over the body at the chapel of Sam R. Greenberg & Co.

A note which was penned before he shot himself was written in German and was turned over to Coroner Donohoe, who stated he would have it translated. It is possible this may throw some light on the suicide.

Weil was seated in the bedroom at his home when he shot himself. The bullet entered the right temple and emerged from the left temple. Members of the family were attracted to the noise of the discharged weapon and rushed into the room. This was about 9 o'clock.

Shed Himself in Bedroom.

Shed himself in the bedroom at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the chapel of Sam R. Greenberg & Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Weil are survived by one daughter, Mrs. J. Harrington, of Atlanta, and two sons, N. S. Weil, of Atlanta, and J. Weil, of Knoxville, Tennessee.

If Neglected, Trouble Soon Pines Away and Dies

There is perhaps as much trouble in the world now as ever, but people of the present day do not trouble about trouble as much as they used to.

Old, young and middle-aged people of today are all taking more interest in entertainment, amusement and diversions of all kinds. They are serious—yes; but they get through with the serious affairs of everyday life as early in the day as possible, and then they are ready for the diversions of the afternoon and evening.

Women do most all of the buying for the home, yet how few women of the present day read in the evening. They read the advertisements in The Constitution in the morning and do their buying as a result.

That is one of the reasons why The Constitution goes into more homes in Atlanta and suburbs every day than any other Atlanta newspaper.

ADVERTISING IN THE CONSTITUTION PAYS THE ADVERTISER AND SAVES THE BUYER

SENATE BLOCKS TAX LEGISLATION

Washington, February 1.—(AP)—Senate action on a resolution declaring for enactment of tax reduction legis-

tion at this session was staved off today by Republican leaders. Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, succeeded in getting his measure before the senate, but it finally was forced to the calendar under the rules, by speech-making and parliamentary objections. Asserting that two hours had been "frustrated away by filibustering," the Mississippi gave notice that he would undertake to clog the senate machinery each noon and evening until some action was taken.

Taylor Jury Finds 'No True Bill'

Memphis, Tenn., February 1.—(AP) J. Will Taylor, Tennessee republican chief, won a second tilt with his accusers today when a federal grand jury in district court here returned a "no true bill" after investigating charges that Mr. Taylor had unlawfully solicited campaign money from federal office holders.

The case was presented to the grand jury by Lindsay Phillips, United States district attorney for western Tennessee who had received data from the department of justice at Washington purporting to support the charges of irregularities against the republican national committeeman and congressman from the second district of Tennessee.

Witnesses examined today were persons who had been mentioned in the charges of soliciting. They included the following postmasters: W. G. Adams, Rivers; Mrs. Mamie B. Phillips, Brighton; B. L. Kemp, Adamsville; and Fannie J. Latta, Somerville, W. S. Latta, of Somerville, was a witness.

"I did all in my power to have Congressman Taylor indicted," Mr. Phillips said after the jury had indicated the failure of the move to indict. "It was my duty to present in detail all the evidence to the grand jury and to summon all witnesses instrumental in giving testimony in this district."

Girl Cotton Champ, Eighteen, Pretty And Fond of Dates

Miss Ella Daniels, winner of the cotton club contest in Texas—doesn't look it.

Being the only feminine winner in all the cotton growing contests in the south is quite a distinction, but to produce 1,250 pounds of cotton to the acre and to be all that Miss Daniels is—a miracle.

Pretty, 18, charming, debonnaire—even cosmopolitan, that's Miss Daniels.

She's a junior in high school, plays basketball, and loves all sports, and a good time as well as any junior in high school would who is particularly attractive. Dates? Of course—far be it from Miss Ella to let cotton interfere with having all the fun she can. But she is not engaged; competition is still keen among the boys back in Navarro county in Texas.

When discussing her cotton, her manner grows enthusiastic, and it is easy to see that she takes it seriously. She really enjoys the work, she says, because she "loves to be out in the open, out next to nature," all that she can, so that she does not find it hard at all. That, from a pretty young girl who grew more cotton on five acres of land than several thousand other contestants—and she did it without any help at all except in breaking the ground and picking the crop.

NATIONALISTS INSIST ON TROOP WITHDRAWAL.

Hankow, February 1.—(AP)—The nationalist (Cantonese) government will sign an agreement for a new treaty with Great Britain as soon as the British troops are withdrawn from Shanghai. This official announcement was made tonight by Eugene Chen, nationalist minister of foreign affairs.

In his statement, Mr. Chen said that negotiations with Owen O'Malley, British chargé d'affaires, virtually had been completed regarding the British concession at Hankow, the document requiring only the signature of both parties.

The nationalist government, said Chen, although it has been negotiating while the British were massing troops at Shanghai, never will sign the agreement until those forces have been withdrawn from that city. The minister asserted that his signature to the document in present circumstances would be tantamount to signing under duress which would make the agreement one that would not be lasting.

The withdrawal of the British forces, said Mr. Chen, would inaugurate a new era of relations between nationalist China and England. But, he added, if the British troops and warships remain, negotiations for the treaty will cease.

MARINES ARE READY TO SAIL FOR CHINA.

Washington, February 1.—(AP)—Sailing orders under which 1,200 marines now at San Diego, Calif., will move closer to China as a precautionary measure, were issued today with disclosure, that President Coolidge does not anticipate that it will be necessary for Americans to be evacuated from Shanghai, although the government is taking possible precautions to assure them protection or, if necessary, transportation.

The marines are scheduled to sail Thursday on the transport Chaumont, bound for Asiatic stations. It is expected that detachments will be left at Gam to replace marines ordered from there to Manila. They will be held available for use in China if called for by Admiral Williams, commanding American naval forces in the Orient.

President Coolidge is still awaiting some intimation from China that an agreement can be reached between the warring Chinese factions under which negotiations of new treaties with China can be taken up.

While moves toward direct conversations with the Chinese have been made, it was intimated at the white house today that in the event of negotiations the Washington government probably would be reticent on the subject until it had some accomplished fact with which to deal.

The president called Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee to the white house today and is understood to have gone over the Chinese situation with him. Mr. Borah declined to discuss his talk with the president and no

DEKALB HEARING BEGINS TO DRAG

Decatur, Ga., February 1.—(Special.)—With little progress marking the grand jury investigation into the petition filed against L. T. Y. Nash, DeKalb county commissioner of roads and revenue, on charges of malfeasance of office, it appeared likely Tuesday night that the hearing will not be concluded before Thursday of this week.

This belief was strengthened when it became known that the auditor's report of his examination of Nash's office records made at the instance of the grand jury had not yet been studied by the jury. Few witnesses were heard Tuesday.

Under cross-examination of Attorney William Schley Howard, representing Commissioner Nash, M. F. Mable, county surveyor, admitted that his complaint against Nash to the effect that the commissioner was paying 25 per cent commission on back taxes collected was in accordance with authorization by the 1919 grand jury. He contended however, that he did not think such procedure was right.

C. A. Blackstock, of the Decatur Plumbing company, testified that in 1926 his firm installed plumbing in the county jail for a sum of $1,712.72 and declared that had he bid for the job it would have cost $2,000.

W. H. Braswell testified he did some concrete work for the county for $500 and repudiated the petition statement that the work cost the county $1,000.

Several others testified along similar lines, each contending that he did work for the county for which he did not receive excessive sums of money.

Intimation that political ambitions were behind the move against Nash were brought to light during the present investigation. It was admitted that at least one signer of the petition against Nash had done so in belief that he was opening a political opponent. Several signers admitted they signed the petition without knowing fully what it contained.

Associated Press Moves In Paris With Wires Busy

Paris, February 1.—(AP)—The Paris bureau of the Associated Press, whose work has steadily been expanding, has completed its removal to larger quarters at 21 Rue Vivienne without a break in its lines of communication with the capitals of Europe and the United States.

Expansion of the French service and that of eastern Europe, which is relayed through Paris to New York, required larger offices than those which the bureau had occupied for many years. An entire floor of a new building not far from its old offices in the Place de la Bourse was engaged to which the Associated Press bureau was transferred.

Four telegraph, three telephone lines, a ticker service and a pneumatic tube were installed and placed in operation without a break.

The new offices give ample provision for a feature service, archives and full office equipment. The Paris bureau staff, which numbered three persons in 1914, has now grown to ten.

DRY AGENTS SEIZE 114 DISTILLERIES DURING JANUARY

Work by prohibition agents during January resulted in capture and destruction of 114 distilleries, and destruction of contraband property valued at $11,326.85, according to report of W. T. Day, deputy administrator for Georgia.

Fifteen automobiles, valued at $5,475, were seized during the month, and 72 arrests were made. Eighty prosecutions were recommended to the district attorney.

A total of 1,755 gallons of whisky, 202,890 gallons of still beer, and 942 fermenters were seized and destroyed during the month.

HOUSE COMMITTEE CONSIDERS SHOALS

Washington, February 1.—(AP)—Five hours more of testimony on the two pending Muscle Shoals lease bids was taken today by the house military committee before it closed the hearings, hopeful of reporting some proposal to the house during the week.

The hearings, brought to an end yesterday and night committee sessions last night, were resumed today to hear final statements on the offers by the American Cyanamid company and the Farmers' Federated Fertilizer corporation. The bids were given into the care of the committee after ex-Senator A. O. Stanley, of Kentucky, counsel for the farmer corporation, explained that it was willing to guarantee fertilizer production and submit to other changes and had attacked the Cyanamid bid as a move in the interest of the "steel trust" rather than of the farmers.

Additional telegrams were received by the committee today from commercial organizations in states around Muscle Shoals protesting against any lease that does not provide for distribution of surplus power to nearby communities for industrial purposes.

PROPOSAL MADE TO NAME STATE FOR COOLIDGE

Albuquerque, N. M., February 1.—(AP)—The Albuquerque Advertising club has launched a movement to change the name of the state of New Mexico to Coolidge. A resolution endorsing a bill that had been prepared for presentation to the legislature was unanimously adopted last night.

Frankfort, Ky., February 1.—(AP)—Governor Fields Tuesday granted extradition papers for the return of George G. W. Alsbrook, wanted in Putnam county for making whisky.

LASTINGER TRIAL OPENS IN DOUGLAS

Douglas, Ga., February 1.—(AP)—Gaines Lastinger, on trial here for alleged complicity in the lynching of Dave Wright, a white man and the only person lynched in Georgia in 1926, today heard several persons who have been sentenced from 4 to 20 years on a similar charge, give conflicting testimony as to his alleged part in the lynching.

Robert Bullard, one of four men yet to be placed on trial, said Lastinger was a member of the lynching party. Several other witnesses denied that he was present, however.

Indications tonight were that the case could not reach the jury before some time Wednesday, although a night session of court was held in order to speed it along. More than 25 witnesses remained to be called but counsel said that some of them might be excused.

During the day Major Brown, who recently confessed to being a ringleader of the lynching band and was sentenced to life imprisonment, refused to testify when brought to the witness stand, on grounds that he was being discriminated against. Other witnesses in the case who are now serving prison terms were taken to a hotel while here for the trial, he said, while he was quartered in the jail.

Thirteen men have already pleaded guilty in connection with the lynching and have been sentenced. Lastinger was granted a separate trial from Robert Bullard, D. B. Lott, John Strickland and Tilden Smith, who are yet to be tried, a Lastinger pleaded not guilty.

The trial has created considerable interest here, but no disturbances have occurred.

Frank Lloyd, who directs pictures for Paramount, has more time for his production now than earlier in his career. In the old days of the short-length film, he turned out 40 in one year.

Catholic Priest And Protestant Girl Are Married

Marceline, Mo., February 1.—(AP)—News of their marriage in Chicago January 18, today cleared up the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Rev. D. V. Downey, 36, pastor of the St. Bonaventure Catholic church here, and Miss Maudie Myers, 21, daughter of a Marceline coal miner.

The marriage was revealed today by Robert M. Sweitzer, Cook county clerk at Chicago, who said the couple were married by Judge Henry W. McEwen there.

The disappearance of the priest the night of January 17 stirred Marceline. Then it was learned that Miss Myers had disappeared the same night. Police found that Father Downey had checked his trunk to a Chicago hotel and bought a ticket for that city and that Miss Myers had purchased a ticket for Fort Madison, Iowa.

Police in Chicago were asked to search for the priest and the girl, but no trace of them was found.

Then a sister of the girl here revealed that she had received a letter from Maudie saying:

"A world of married. Guess you know whom to."

The supposition was that the two had been married, but there was no confirmation until today.

The names of the girl, who is a Protestant, and the pastor had never been linked until their disappearance. Father Downey was popular among the Protestants as well as Catholics of Marceline.

Georgia Enrolls Record-Breaking Total of Students

Athens, Ga., February 1.—(AP)—With the enrollment of 63 new students since the beginning of the winter term on January 3, the number of students at the University of Georgia has increased to 1,578, the largest enrollment in the history of the institution, according to W. P. Warren, assistant registrar.

Last year's enrollment was 1,463. This number includes students in the Franklin college of arts, the college of science and engineering, the school of commerce, the Henry Grady school of journalism, the Lumpkin law school, and the pharmacy department, but not the correspondence school or summer school.

Mr. Warren says that there are about 500 students receiving instruction by correspondence, and that there are usually about 2,000 enrolled for the summer school sessions. He estimated the number of co-eds at about 300.

He also stated that since he has been at the university the registration has increased steadily, except for the period during the war.

WHITNEY GARAGE MOST ELABORATE IN ENTIRE SOUTH

Thomasville, Ga., February 1.—(Special.)—What is probably the most handsome garage in the south is the one that is nearing completion at Greenwood, the estate of Payne Whitney, of New York. This garage is built on the colonial style, used on all of the buildings of the estate and carrying out the idea of the beautiful old colonial home, which is so greatly admired.

The garage accommodates 17 cars and is two stories high, with wings to the right and left and apartment above for chauffeurs and others. Both Payne Whitney and his brother, Harry Payne Whitney, whose handsome hunting lodge is below here, bring out numbers of cars for their use and that of their many guests during the season.

PRESIDENT'S WIFE GUEST OF HONOR OF MRS. BLEASE

Washington, February 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Coolidge was the guest of honor at a luncheon today of Mrs. Coleman I. Blease, wife of Senator Blease of South Carolina.

Among 70 guests, mostly wives of senators, were Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the vice president; Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg, wife of the secretary of state; and Mrs. Harry S. New, wife of the postmaster general.

DIVORCE IS GRANTED TO MRS. 'BUD' FISHER

New York, February 1.—The idea of a man amusing the public with his cartoons and then going home and beating his wife was too much for Justice Tierney, of the supreme court, who granted a divorce Tuesday to Mrs. H. C. Fisher, wife of "Bud" Fisher, the cartoonist.

"It is unthinkable that a man like Mr. Fisher would do such a thing," said the justice, "but the evidence shows that he did and I shall grant Mrs. Fisher a divorce."

RICHARDS IS LAUDED ON LYNCHING STAND

Columbia, S. C., February 1.—(AP)—A concurrent resolution commending Governor Richards for his expressed determination to bring to justice the Alken lynchers was unanimously adopted by the senate today and sent to the house.

The senate also concurred in a resolution inviting L. G. Hardman, governor-elect of Georgia, to address the joint assembly at noon today.

The resolution commending Governor Richards on the Alken stand, which was introduced by Senator Greener, of Edgefield, follows:

"Whereas, the recent lynchings in Alken are a disgrace, and

"Whereas, we thoroughly condemn such acts, both as to disgrace to our state and a sin against humanity, and

"Whereas, all good citizens of this state deeply deplore the said outrages, and

"Whereas, Governor John G. Richards is trying to bring to justice the perpetrators of this crime, both against civilization and in the sight of God, Therefore,

"Be it resolved by the senate, the house of representatives concurring, That we do thoroughly sympathize with our governor in his efforts to bring to trial the parties responsible for this heinous crime, and do pledge him our cooperation and aid, and call upon the good citizens of the state to aid in bringing the guilty to trial, not only that they may be punished for such terrible deeds, but that our people may be protected against the recurrence of such horrible deeds within our borders."

Georgia Enrolls Record-Breaking Total of Students

Athens, Ga., February 1.—(AP)—With the enrollment of 63 new students since the beginning of the winter term on January 3, the number of students at the University of Georgia has increased to 1,578, the largest enrollment in the history of the institution, according to W. P. Warren, assistant registrar.

Last year's enrollment was 1,463. This number includes students in the Franklin college of arts, the college of science and engineering, the school of commerce, the Henry Grady school of journalism, the Lumpkin law school, and the pharmacy department, but not the correspondence school or summer school.

Mr. Warren says that there are about 500 students receiving instruction by correspondence, and that there are usually about 2,000 enrolled for the summer school sessions. He estimated the number of co-eds at about 300.

He also stated that since he has been at the university the registration has increased steadily, except for the period during the war.

IMMIGRATION LAW CHANGE DEFERRED

Washington, February 1.—(AP)—The movement to repeal the provision of existing law basing immigration quotas on national origin after next July 1, was put under way today with senate adoption of a resolution deferring the coming into force of the provision for one year.

House action also is necessary, but prompt approval of the resolution is expected there, since several measures having the same purpose are pending before the immigration committee, and have met with general expressions of approval.

Chief objection to basing the quotas on the national origin of immigrants entering the country during the century ended in 1920 has been that the number of immigrants from the Irish Free State, Germany and the Scandinavian countries would be materially decreased.

SECOND FLORIDA WOMAN IS GIVEN DEATH SENTENCE

Jacksonville, Fla., February 1.—(AP)—A circuit court jury today found Mrs. Billy Jackson guilty of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of her husband here October 10 last.

Missing Atlantant Believed Found Near Americus

Americus, Ga., February 1.—(Special).—Arthur Stone, missing from his home at 1229 De Pore avenue, Atlanta, during the two years past, may be held in jail at Americus, W. E. Atkins, a friend of the missing boy's mother, Mrs. A. V. Stone, was in Americus, Tuesday, and while here, partially identified "L. W. Search," who has been under arrest here several weeks, as the missing Atlantant.

Two years, one upon the nose and the other upon the forehead of "Search," were declared by Atkins to tally in every respect with scars upon young Stone at the time of his disappearance, but "Search" is considerably lighter in weight than the Atlantant youth. According to Atkins, Stone's hair was black, and "Search" by publication of a news item in The Atlantant Constitution telling of the boy's arrest and his inability to give any account of himself.

At first it was believed the boy was Elderly Olsen, missing Wisconsin man who is accused of the murder of his sweetheart, but this theory is now discounted. He was arrested at Leslie, near Americus after he had attempted suicide, inflicting a deep wound in his left breast with a pocket knife. (Undoubtedly the youth is mentally unbalanced.)

Mrs. Stone stated that when her boy left his home in Atlanta he did so with an avowed intention of committing suicide, and she says she has not heard from him since his disappearance. The Stone youth, according to his mother, is mentally defective, and this similarity has given rise to a belief here that "Search" and Stone may be the same man.

Mrs. W. P. McArthur, wife of Sheriff McArthur, has interested herself personally in the unfortunate youth, and is making every effort to determine his identity.

ARKANSAS SOLONS VOTE $26,000,000 FOR GOOD ROADS

Little Rock, February 1.—(AP)—The Crawford-Burke highway bill today awaited the signature of the author, Governor Martineau, to become immediately effective. The measure, calling for bond retirement payment of $13,000,000 on new highway construction of $26,000,000 through sale of notes during the next two years, was passed by the senate, 30 to 5, and an emergency clause added this afternoon.

GANG OF ROBBERS HOLD UP 100 MEN AND GET $10,000

Chicago, February 1.—(AP)—Blocking the only convenient exit with a machine gun, a gang of robbers ordered more than 100 bettors in a handbook establishment to lie face down on the floor while they escaped with $10,000 here today. Two of the robbers before midday except the agents committee report. The committee had not completed its consideration of resolutions on wages and working conditions.

ANTI-CIGARETTE LAW IN KANSAS FACING REPEAL

GREEN RIVER WHISKY DISTILLER IS DEAD

Owensboro, Ky., February 1.—(AP)—Colonel John McCulloch, 67, who gained world-wide reputation as a distiller of the famous brand of "Green River" whisky, and a former Kentucky member of the republican national committee, died at a hospital here early tonight.

The colonel was stricken with apoplexy at his home in 1926 and was removed to the hospital yesterday.

Colonel McCulloch sold his distilling business in 1917 to La Montagne Brothers, New York and Paris, receiving around $2,500,000 for it. His fortune had been swept away as a result of oil investments in Kentucky, and graphite mines in Alabama.

He is survived by his widow and seven children. A daughter, Mrs. Charles Vilas, lives in Cleveland, Ohio.

Prior to coming to Atlanta he served as cashier of the State bank of Bogard, Fla., and the First National bank of Punta Gorda, Fla. In addition to this experience, Mr. Bowman has completed the standard banking courses of the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking.

Miners Will Leave Wage Negotiations In Hands of Lewis

Indianapolis, February 1.—(AP)—As a result of the endorsement of the Lewis administration on every issue it is generally believed the convention of the United Mine Workers will give the scale committee of the central competitive field wide authority in the contract negotiations with bituminous operators at Miami, February 14. Discussion of a new contract will come before the convention tomorrow.

President John L. Lewis and his committee, it is thought, will be permitted by the convention to adjust contract differences as they see fit, bound by only one restriction. The miners are expected to definitely oppose any reduction of wages. Promulgation of the five-day week likely will be left to the committee, although the convention is expected to declare for the short week principle.

Bacon's Formula For Longer Life Told By Dean

Philadelphia, February 1.—(AP)—Pearls, flowers, snakes and dragons are among the ingredients of a formula recorded by Roger Bacon, Franciscan monk of the thirteenth century for maintaining life in youthful vigor for a hundred years or more.

Telling of the formula before the Medieval academy of America last night, Dr. Robert Belle Burke, dean of the college of the university of Pennsylvania and professor of Latin, who spent four years in translating Bacon's work, said that thelixir probably was valueless in prolonging life.

BOOTLEGGERS SEND CARDS TO SOLONS, JOHNSON STATES

Washington, February 1.—(AP)—Bootleggers have waited in congressional lobbies while their cards were sent in to members, Representative Johnson, democrat, Kentucky, declared in the house today.

"One even had the impudence to solicit me," he added. "And when they are caught and convicted, they boast that their influential friends will get them out of their troubles."

The Kentucky was attacking the treasury's medicinal whisky bill, which he described as an instrument to defeat prohibition. He contended the "subsidized" corruption set up by the bill would be empowered to distribute liquor in any way it chose under the guise of dispersive medicine.

"It has been correctly said," the whisky bill," he said, Johnson assailed the administration of prohibition in Kentucky.

"They sent an undercover man to my state," he said, "who proved so objectionable that they promoted him to the state administrator. Then he brutally murdered a couple of citizens and they promoted him again to be in charge of two states."

THREE ARMY PLANES ARRIVE IN ECUADOR

Guayaquil, Ecuador, February 1.—A crowd of several thousands lining the river front saw three United States army amphibian planes—the New York, San Francisco and St. Louis—make an excellent landing Tuesday in the River Gajas, directly opposite the city.

The plane Detroit, which also is making the good-will flight through South America, was left behind 200 miles south of Tumaco, Colombia, where the four took off earlier in the day. It is expected to arrive in Guayaquil later, but the fifth plane, the San Antonio, will not call here.

Government officials gave a banquet for the aviators at the Hotel Cecil. The planes will continue southward Wednesday morning.

2 EVERY MODEL has shared in the advantages of General Motors research, purchasing standards and Proving Ground tests; and in the economies of volume production made possible by world-wide sales.

WITH GREAT PRIDE we invite you to inspect these new cars. Dollar for dollar you will buy more value in the car you select because of General Motors quality and the public's purchase of more than 1,200,000 General Motors cars last year.

FORECASTS PEACE IN CHINA.

The prompt action of General Yang Sen, of the Chun Kiang and Szechuan provinces, in ordering the immediate execution of 22 Chinese soldiers who had attempted the seizure of an American ship, in their unauthorized raids upon foreign interests, should go a far way toward allaying the apprehension of Americans as to the possible unfriendly attitude of the controlling military authorities in Northern China. At the same time it should serve to warn this government against any threatening or disturbing attitude in the present crisis in China, aside from the protection of nationals along lines of strict adherence to international laws.

The position of the United States as outlined recently by Secretary Kellogg cannot be challenged as to its soundness. The stabilization and nationalization of a Chinese government, sufficiently strong to give autonomy to her people, and to make a democracy generally effective throughout all of the provinces, is such a worthy objective that the other nations of the world—particularly the great occidental powers—should cooperate to that end.

The United States has shown a willingness to thus cooperate, and Great Britain, whose alleged exploitation of China precipitated the existing anti-foreign clashes, has also avowed a willingness. The concession controversy, in the hands of Chinese and British conferees, is meeting with some rebuffs due to complaint against centralization of British armed forces at Shanghai, but it is expected that negotiations will be resumed.

Pending the conclusions of such negotiations the conciliatory spirit of General Yang Sen is most heartening, and opens the way to civic and military coordination looking to peace and to happier and better days for that country.

FARM WORKERS GATHER.

Agricultural college heads—executives, teachers, extension directors, agents, dirt farmers, cotton contest winners, and others directly interested in agricultural work—are gathered in convention in Atlanta this week from sixteen states in the south and southwest.

It is one of the most important conferences held in the south in years, and it comes at a psychological time. From the deliberations and conclusions there will go forth more intensive state campaigns for balanced production, standardization, per-acre yield increases, and other sensible farm activities, than could possibly result from any other group action.

MISS BERRY HONORED.

Another signal honor has been bestowed upon Miss Martha Berry, founder and director of the nationally famous Berry schools near Rome. She has been named vice president at large of the American Forestry association, with headquarters in Washington. It is a deserving tribute of appreciation for her great interest in trees and flowers and because of her substantial contribution to practical forestry in establishing the Martha Berry forest, a tract of several thousand acres of timber land, in connection with her school.

At the Berry schools practical forestry is taught, as it should be taught in every school. Conservation is not only taught but stressed in the everyday pupil life. The hazards of forest fires and their great exactions upon the natural wealth of states and communities are taught. Miss Berry, who has led in so many constructive things, has been a leader in this, and her recognition by the national forestry organization is eminently fitting.

The old-fashioned farmer who plowed by the moon is supplanted by the wise agriculturist who gets his slant of things from the agricultural experiment station and its agents.

Lady Godiva's home town is being sold in its entirety. The natives are no longer able to make a bare living.

AVOID AN EXTRA SESSION.

The 69th congress, now in the third month of the final three-month short term, is just about where it started during the first week of last December. Some of the supply bills have been passed, but the majority of them remain unacted upon, and are liable to be caught in the proverbial last-minute jam.

With the budget system, and with the enlarged appropriation committee of the house, through various sub-committees initiating all appropriations by classifications, the work of providing for the next fiscal year's activities should have been easily completed before the holidays.

As it is, with the usual political footballing, both houses find themselves in hopeless congestion, and now there is not only "talk," but serious tendencies toward an extra session. This, by all odds, should be avoided. It could be if the members will stop their political sparring and work coordinately toward the end of getting the supply bills through at once, and then passing the other essential matters pending, like farm legislation, Muscle Shoals contract, etc. Definite action on both matters is promised, and with the equalization fee on cotton struck from the McNary-Haugen bill and the Crisp bill should find an easy compromise for enactment.

The trouble is politics—and petty, insidious, invidious politics at that. It hampers progress, kills worthy measures, and distresses the whole nation.

Nothing, however, can be of more inestimable harm to the economic welfare of America than a long-drawn-out summer session of congress. From that, the Lord spare us!

UNWELCOME CRITICISM.

The bitter tirade against Secretary of State Kellogg, unleashed by the "third internationale" of Moscow, ought to serve to bring the millions of patriotic American citizens who decry communism, and all other red and inflammatory movements of the kind, more closely cooperative in support of the present American policy to protect its nationals and their properties, wherever they may be—whether in Mexico, China, Nicaragua, Russia or in the Cannibal islands of the South seas.

This government is committed by its organic laws, and by the spirit of its founders, against imperialism or imperialistic tendencies. It has, perhaps, strayed too far at times from those safe old moorings established by the fathers. It has, undoubtedly, been misunderstood in some of its movements. It made a mistake, we believe, in its policy of isolation. It failed to show that international cooperation that it should have shown following the world war. It enlarged its territorial possessions more than many of us have thought wise. But it is not an imperialistic government. Territorial conquests are not and never have been objectives. And we do not need, nor do we cherish, any advice or warnings or threats from the Russian bolsheviks.

Secretary Kellogg's course has thus far been conservative. Apprehension has been felt as to the invasion of Nicaragua, and further than the protection of nationals we should not go. We are assured that the state department's policy stops there. If so, all right! Developments will disclose.

In the meantime there should be no temporizing with soviet criticisms.

A SHORT STORY.

The Rev. Arthur W. Davitt, a widely-known Indiana minister, lecturer and writer, says that the teacher of Sunday school class in a church of which he was pastor in the early part of his ministry, was a girl who would answer to the present-day description, "beautiful but dumb."

"Her pupils were children of eight years or so," said Mr. Davitt. "One Sunday the golden text was, 'Keep yourself from idols,' and one inquisitive little fellow after hearing the text repeated several times inquired, 'Miss Dora, what does that text mean?'"

"The young teacher was taken off guard, but rallied quickly as she replied solemnly, while pointing a warning finger at the little boy, 'It means, Everett, that you never, never should associate with persons who do not work.'"

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY JOSEPH VAN RAAITE

New York, February 1.—More than $500,000,000 is lost annually in this country through purchase of fraudulent securities. Most of this "fruit" where it's perfectly all right to break the law with a pen but not a pistol.

The wise crooks of the Town of Queer Percentages realize that the average man is on the lookout to get something for nothing, and he capitalizes on the cupid's quest.

Fully half the $500,000,000 lost annually in the brokerage come from game is taken from men and women whose hearts aren't out there but in the dealers in Golden Fleece.

A boob goes up against a wire-tapping game. The boob tells him that by intercepting messages across the wires they can give him sure-things advice. If the boob were an honest fellow he'd scorn to take a part in a deal, knowing that he was to profit by questionable methods. But he readily falls in with the plan and when he finally gets the wire-tapping machine he rushes to the police and squeals. I've never had any sympathy with the victims of "gold brick" and allied swindles. It's nearly a case of "cheating cheaters"—a game where the best man is entitled to all he can get.

A New York dramatic critic remarked the other day in the course of a review, that "nothing could astonish him any more." Which is tantamount to admitting that his value as a critic is nil. Nothing is ever stale, worn or humdrum to the legitimate commentator. His true worth lies in the fact that he can bring to a thousandth rehearsal a point of view as fresh as if he were witnessing it for the first time.

When they pass the age of astonishment they're through.

There's Alan Dale for example. He's been reviewing plays for more than 30 years and gets just as excited over a snappy little musical comedy today as he did back in the days of Florida.

He took in a show the other night and next day wrote as follows: "I'll admit that I laughed till the tears ran down my nose. I reviewed some checks as I listened to Lulu McConnell in that Fifth avenue show scene selling combinations to an acculturated feminine. The comedian acculturated one complained of the color, the retort that no one would ever see it but herself—the whole house giggled."

The big thing there is that Brother Dale, who has "covered" thousands of musical shows, "laughed till the tears ran down his nose" reviewing "checks," while the audience merely giggled.

It is only the dilettante who curls up and dies of ennui.

Jack Sheridan, the oyster man at the Waldorf, has been wrecking from 1:40 to 3:00 bivalves an hour, eight hours a day, six days a week, eight and a half months a year for 37 years, and figuring days off, holidays and time out to wash his hands, estimates that his daily morning of oyster work opened his twenty-five millionth oyster.

In all the 37 years of holding the right to 25,000,000 oysters he says he never found a single pearl of any value. Just a little incomplete formation in the shell, but nothing worth anything. One day he and his assistants found four pearls about the size of the small end of a collar button. A jeweler told him the pearls were worth nothing.

We have all found pearls about the size of the small end of a collar button," remarked the newspaperman who was interviewing Oysterman Jack.

"Yes," he replied with a sigh, "life is just a jeweler."

There were more to the interview, but it never got very much above that level.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

Complaints Against the Interstate Commerce Commission That Imply Revolt.

As we become a more populous and compact country the legal questions that affect interstate commerce become more frequent and more complicated with federal and state constitutional rights. It was intended by the creation of the federal interstate commerce commission to establish an impartial and non-political body that would carefully investigate and mediate issues arising out of such commerce. Particularly it was hoped that the commission would protect the states and the people generally from oppressive rates and regulations of common carriers, especially the railroads, and would differentiate sharply the powers of congress over interstate commerce and those of each state over its internal commerce.

But, in the passage of time and by the gradual assumptions of authority the interstate commerce commission has become a huge and autocratic power over both interstate and intrastate commerce.

The states and the people have come to fear it rather than to rely upon it for the protection of their rights. The railroads no longer fear it. The result is a growing feeling in and out of congress that it should be either reformed or entirely abolished.

No Enmity to Railroads.

The people of the states have been always too wise and too progressive to encourage blind and unreasoning enmity to railroads, shops, telegraph, or any other agency of commerce and communication, internal or interstate. Whenever there has been a conflict between the people and any of those agencies it has been because the people believed they were not being given a square deal by the corporations to whom creation they had consented.

Hence it was that in 1880 the democratic party declared for "no discrimination in favor of transportation lines, corporations, or monopolies."

And, hence it was, that the "Green-back party," nominating General Weaver for president that same year, declared that:

"It is the duty of congress to regulate interstate commerce. All lines of communication and transportation should be brought under such legislation as shall secure moderate, fair, and uniform rates for passenger and freight traffic."

The interstate commerce commission was created to answer such demands, but its conduct was such as to bring from the democratic party in 1896 the following declaration:

"The absorption of wealth by the few, the consolidation of our leading railroad systems and the formation of trusts and pools, require a stricter control by the federal government of these arteries of commerce. We demand the enlargement of the powers of the interstate commerce commission, and such restriction and guarantee in the control of railroads as will protect the people from robbery and oppression."

The demand was repeated in 1900. The powers of the commission were enlarged by the republican party, friendly to the railroads.

So that now, under the existing railway consolidation act, there are no longer any railroads, but the commission will be only a complainant rate-making body for the few great transportation systems of the nation.

Another Revolt Predicted.

Around the halls of congress one can hear now frequent predictions that the next time the democratic party will be another revolt by the plain people against unfair and excessive railroad rates, especially as they affect the great agricultural regions.

Congress is beginning to sit up and take notice. The senate is showing opposition to any "loading" of the interstate commerce commission with just what is termed a "protection" to that body because of his too close relations to the interests he would be called upon to supervise.

It is growing daily more evident that the commission must better serve the people or the people will demand a new organization of that body.

The Aim Is All Right.

The aim of the people in setting up the interstate commerce commission was wholly commendable. Such a continuous regulatory agency had become necessary.

The national democracy, as early as 1836, declared "hostility to any and all monopolies by legislation, because they are violations of equal rights of the people; hostile to the dangerous and unconstitutional creation of vested rights or prerogatives by legislation, because they are usurpations of the people's sovereign rights."

Yet such monopolies and such

Royalist Split.

The royalists of France are split into two camps. Their official paper, Action Francaise, has been placed on the Index Librorum Prohibitus, and that this journal may no longer be read by devout Catholics. The various papers, principally the "Action Francaise," the "Action Francaise," and the "Action Francaise," are all under the influence of the German anti-French forces and that its official journal Observateur Roman is hostile to its own country, the vatican. The dispute, constant, is fanned by the opinions of Cardinal Andrieux and other French clerics, the most discussed polemical event since the war. But Daudet does not take the matter of having been placed on the Index very seriously. He considers himself with the fact that Pope Benedict XV, a noble and a defender of the faith, and that a novel, written by a youthful priest, who became the great Leo XIII, is also on the Index.

Their Master's Voice.

The new president of the French chamber of deputies is a Provencal, which means he has a powerful voice, a healthy constitution and a commanding way. He is a socialist and a member of the cabinet, and he is a credit. For some years he had been vice president, when he gained the esteem of all parties by his impartiality. He has fire, wit, a biting humor at times and a sharp eye. He is gathered from his book of trenchant impressions. He knows every subject by name. On the stenographic record of a chamber session appears these words spoken by the vice president: "Look here, Renaud sits down. You are going to sit down or not when I tell you to sit down? Cachen (communist), are you going to hold your tongue?" Citizen Cachen becomes silent. This causes Renaud Daudet (royalist) to burst out:

THE LAW OF THE PACK.

The proprietor of a New York animal and bird shop who had a hawk on exhibition in his window conceived the brilliant idea of placing a canary in the same cage.

A crowd of several hundred persons collected to watch the one-sided fight. Most of them laughed. A few muttered words of indignation, but no one thought of rushing into the shop, rescuing the canary and administering to the Greek proprietor the thrashing he so richly merited. Had there been one strong within.

In the Capital of the Commonwealth the inhabitants adhere to the law of the pack. They have been herded so long, and so skillfully, the instinct is strong within them.

In all likelihood nothing would have been known of the hawk and the canary fight if it hadn't been for an

APROSEXIA VULGARIS

Buying theater tickets I underestimated the number in my party and had to return to the box office for more. Then I tried to pocket the tickets and force upon the doorman a handful of change I had just received at the ticket window. Aprosexia vulgaris (ordinary absent mindedness) is sometimes an expensive affliction—many a victim of it walks blithely away leaving tidy sums in charge without a claimant. Suppose there is a psychological explanation for it, which I will leave to our regular psychologist. All I know is that long years before I screwed up courage to go about hatless I was wont to forget my lid when making a call and tremendously discomfited if the oversight was discovered by some one who would come running after me with my hat.

Right now I am unable to recollect the fancy name which the famous old advertising has popularized for foul breath, although a thousand correspondents have interpreted it for my information. I wanted to draw an analogy between the ridiculous use of that term for bad breath and my own little joke in calling ordinary absent mindedness by the ponderous term aprosexia. But I can think of no analogy which means loss or absence of the sense of smell. But never mind. Wouldn't it be a calamity to the apish business if anosmia became epidemic?

Nostalgia keeps recurring, but that is homesickness.

Well, to perdition with it—I have always wished I could forget that word anyway. It makes me so tired when some simple correspondent insists on translating it into ordinary language for me.

There are at least three kinds of absent mindedness. First, the normal state of persons of great intellect. Second, the functional inattentiveness of the child with adenoids or other obstruction of the upper breathing passages. Third, the fixed or abnormal absent mindedness of persons with disease affecting the brain.

Dr. Arnold Leland, in his book on "Defective Memory and Absent Mindedness" (F. A. Davis company, Philadelphia) ascribes considerable influence to the state of some of the ductless glands in the causation of absent mindedness and poor memory, and he tells of some few cases in which marked improvement was obtained through treatment with ductless gland extracts.

It is debatable whether the impaired hearing which so commonly goes with adenoids or enlarged tonsils, and the consequent vitality which inevitably occurs from prolonged interference with oxygenation of the blood is not the sole explanation for the absent mindedness and absent mindedness which characterizes the behavior of the child with this handicap.

Another good suggestion of Dr. Leland's for the forgetfulness of nature or prematurely aged adults particularly is an adequate iodine ration.

Does not put in these terms, but he wears dish in the setting in which several chickens repose among savory hemispheres of cabbage, Gargantuan carrots, and a regiment of lardons, which explains that delicate smoked taste which suggestively pervades the tender flesh of the fowl.

Poule Au Pot.

On the Ile de la Cite, in Paris, at the end beyond the Palais de Justice, where Tabarin and traveling showmen set up their platforms about the time of Henri IV, a new Parisian restaurant has been opened. Although it has been open scarcely a month, the Auberge du Vert-Galant is crowded nightly by half past eight. The clientele is varied, ranging from the most raffish to the most refined, and top hats, to American tourists who order oyster cocktail, and to middle-western journeymen, who demand the walk of a king to the table de verdure, the sauce for the tete de veau to the surprise of the polite garcon.

A poule au pot Vert-Galant is an expensive affair. A great earthenware dish is filled with a variety of cold chickens repose among savory hemispheres of cabbage, Gargantuan carrots, and a regiment of lardons, which explains that delicate smoked taste which suggestively pervades the tender flesh of the fowl.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Scrambled Bimbos.

My daughter gave birth to a baby in a hospital, and things were so badly managed that the several babies (all boys) born about the same time were so mixed up that the nurses did not know which was which or who was who, the parentage being finally decided by facial resemblance. My daughter is now worrying as to whether she really has her own baby. Is there any known test which would definitely settle this?

Answer—Biological blood grouping tests may yield fairly conclusive evidence that a child is not of a given parentage, but there is no known test by which parentage can be positively determined.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

ANSWERED BY

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

My son is much given to betting. He bets on anything—not large amounts—but he so often loses it makes a big hole in his weekly salary. I argue it out with him, but he says he has got to do it. Is there any way of getting him out of the habit?

Gambling can be cured because it has been. But it has such a strangle hold on its victims that I am unable to say what the outcome will be in your son's case.

You can demonstrate how his losses exceed his gains, point out to him the folly of his failing and rightly insist that he is investing heavily in future disaster.

But the passion which made the soldiers who crucified Christ gamble for His clothes beneath His Cross is an exceedingly tenacious one. It seems to have gripped your boy at the center. Not all fathers are friends to their sons who are carried off their feet by the betting habit. Yet hard though it may be to preserve patience and show sympathy, they are necessary now, if ever, in your dealings with your son.

Retain his confidence if you have it. Try to win it if he shows the reticence gamblers often manifest. Can he not be turned to other and saner enterprises? If you have supplied him with money, cut it down to the bare necessities as it is money only which feeds the evil which is devouring his soul and substance.

A father can always pray for an erring son. Nor are such prayers useless. I know notable instances of the reformation of gamblers through regeneration which should give you courage to persevere.

How long will practical morality survive the attacks made upon it by theories which are essentially immoral, and books and magazines which are equally so?

The past shows that speculative and practical morality is a hardy and persistent force, and there is good reason to believe that it will maintain its sway in the future.

But we need to clear our confused fancies about it, to re-establish ethical standards, to temper our zeal for the conduct which corresponds with codes that time and experience have sanctioned.

The attacks upon so-called conventional morality vary in their nature and importance. Some are directed against objective and still more against subjective morality.

Biblical religion assigns supremacy to the former. The revelation of righteousness in word and deed made by Christ acknowledges the reality of subjective morality, accompanied by Seriously and sincerely, the neuritis before you does nothing to your trouble may be. Certainly no form of neuritis I know about would manifest itself in the way you describe.

Why Not Hoopsnake Oil

Is there any virtue in the use of a rattlesnake oil preparation for deafness? (E. C. F.)

Answer—No, this is just a silly superstition which has been commercially exploited by certain mail order firms that market concoctions purporting to be rattlesnake oil. Last April a fraud order was issued by the post-office department debaring one such firm from the use of the mails. The rattlesnake remedy leads to nothing but a mind to turn his hand to this resourceful member of the reptilian family.

THE OVERLAND ROUTE

*You never miss the water till the well
runs dry!*

Copyright, 1927,
S. B., Inc.

But then, HOW you miss it!

We become so accustomed to the good things of life, to having the necessities of our existence constantly at hand, that we are prone to take them for granted. We go to the pump time after time without a thought for the water, until some day the well runs dry, and then—

The Pump in this instance is PROSPERITY. But there's a leak in the Pump that should be stopped. Some of the pure, life-giving water of commerce is spouting away and being wasted on "BELL RINGER" BUSINESS.

This leak amounts to an enormous amount each year, taken out of local business circles, sent away to foreign houses; taken out of circulation in our home town; removed so that you and yours can never benefit from this vast sum of money.

The man who is responsible for this leak is the peddler at your door. The house-to-house canvasser, or "Bell Ringer." This peddler in himself may be all right, human like the rest of us. But the system he represents is a menace to every community in the land. The system he represents competes directly with your home town merchants, with the business institutions upon which your home city depends for prosperity. Without this community prosperity there can be no INDIVIDUAL prosperity. Therefore, when you patronize peddlers YOU ARE COMPETING AGAINST YOURSELF.

That may sound odd to you, but it's exactly the way it works out. Let's put it this way. If the good old firm of Smith & Jones in your town does an annual business of $1,000,000, a big share of this will go into circulation in your community in the form of payrolls, taxes, rent, upkeep and repairs, interest and many other avenues of expenditure. If the Smith & Jones store only does a business of $500,000, the other half million being spent by the public among peddlers, it is easily seen how Smith & Jones will only be able to put half as much money in circulation in YOUR TOWN.

The "Bell Ringers" take money out of your community when you buy their merchandise. That isn't good for YOU or for the members of your family. The dollars you spend in your own community become an endless chain, passed along from one to another until they eventually come back to you again. That's what makes good business, prosperity and happiness. The dollars you send out of town via the "Bell Ringer" STAY OUT OF TOWN and neither you nor anybody else in the community derives any benefit from them.

Let's get together and stop this leak in the pump of prosperity. It can easily be done if we will use just ordinary horse sense in our daily business dealings. When you are ready to buy something you need, go downtown to your local stores and buy it—get your money's worth, trade with people you know and have known for years. Don't trust your hard-earned money to strangers, whom you probably never will see again. Don't take a chance on "Bell Ringer" merchandise, which frequently is mediocre to say the least. And, most important of all, don't send your money out of town.

PLEASE REMEMBER:

This campaign is in no way directed against legitimate local business houses and local branch stores of national concerns, which, because of the nature of their merchandise, find it convenient or necessary to demonstrate from door to door. Such reliable stores are entitled to your patronage. It is with the fly-by-night, irresponsible peddler for out-of-town concerns that this series of articles has to deal.

The film featuring Richard Dix in "The Quartermaster" will be given Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Howard theater, with admission 10 cents for children and 25 cents for adults.

"The Quartermaster" is a picture of college life that is clean and inspiring, featuring the struggle of the football hero to prevent the name of "professional" being given him out of the big game for his college. The efforts of his sweetheart, Ester Ralston, too, makes it possible for him to play the big football game itself, in clean amusement throughout, with wholesome thrills which make this picture one of the biggest drawing cards of the year.

College and school boys will love football are especially invited Saturday to witness the game in which every player is a real football player, a graduate of a large college. Among the colleges represented are Leland Stanford, Rutgers, Amherst, West Point, Notre Dame, Navy, Syracuse, Brown, Princeton and others. The first film is to be an "Animated Hair Cartoon."

A report that the "Petshop" at the junction of the Peachtree, will give to Mrs. Newton C. Fine Arts Club Will Present Noted Princess

The Fine Arts club will present Princess Cantacuzene Tuesday morning, February 8, at the Piedmont Driving club. After her marriage to Prince Michael Cantacuzene, head of the famous Russian family, she was a frequent visitor at the court of the czar, where she met many notable men and women who figured conspicuously in the tragedies following the bolshevik revolution.

Mrs. Shallenberger, president of the Fine Arts club, announces that guest cards may be obtained by the members from her at her home, 82 Westminister drive. The cards will be $1 each.

Child's Concert Precedes Symphony Program Tonight

The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra will appear today in two concerts at the city auditorium under the auspices of the Atlanta Music club. The children's matinee will be given at 3:30 o'clock and the evening performance at 8:30. The orchestra is under the direction of Henri Verbrughe, the famous Belgian conductor.

Miss Kate Lee Harralson, director of music of the Atlanta public schools, has written brief notes explaining the seven numbers which will be played at the children's matinee.

"Thousands of children from the public schools attend these matinees, which are given as a yearly institution by the Atlanta Music club.

"The first number," writes Miss Harralson, "is 'The March of the Toys from 'Babes in Toyland,' by Victor Herbert, which is a jolly thing in which the toy animals, dolls, tin and wooden soldiers parade with all the time and power of the strings. The march begins with the fanfare of toy trumpets.

"The music of the Peer Gynt Suite which will be the second number of the program, was written by Edward Grieg, a great Norwegian composer, as incidental music for the play, 'Peer Gynt,' written by the Norwegian dramatist, Ibsen. In the first selection it is interesting to note the six times which are repeated again and again. In the second number of the suite, 'Ance's Death,' Peer Gynt's farewell to his mother at her death bed is given in a motif of great simplicity. 'Ance's Dance' is a mazurka, which is played by the stringed instruments only. In the Hall of the Mountain King depicts Peer Gynt's entrance into the land of the trolls in the mountain fastnesses of Norway.

"The third number is a symphonic poem, 'Danse Macabre,' which Saint-Saens was inspired to write from the following poem by Henri Camille: 'It is a Halloween poem in which the skeletons dance at midnight.'

"Zig, zig, zag, death in grim cadence strikes with bony heel upon the tomb. Death at midnight hour plays a dance. Zig, zig, zag, upon his violin. The winter winds blow, the night is dark. Moans are heard through the linden trees. Through the gloom the white skeletons run. Leaping and dancing in their shrouds. Zig, zig, zag, each one is gay. Their voices are cracking in rhythmic time. Then suddenly they cease the dance. The cock has crowed! The dawn has come."

"The fourth number, 'Waltz of the Flowers,' from 'Nut-Cracker,' by Tchaikowsky is from the story: 'Once upon a time, a little girl had a Christmas party. Each of her little friends brought a gift, among the gifts were a Chinese doll, an Arabian doll, two little toy pipers, and a Russian doll. However, the little girl liked best of all a lovely silver nut-cracker. When the party was over, the little girl crept down stairs to look once more at the lovely silver nut-cracker. She became frightened when she saw a mouse and fainted at the foot of the Christmas tree. She had a strange vision of the silver nutcracker becoming a fairy prince, who fought and killed the Mouse King. The little girl became a fairy princess and flew away over Jam Mountain to the Land of the Sugar Plum Fairy. The little dolls who were on the Christmas tree danced before the Prince and Princess and then upon the invitation of the Sugar Plum, all of the guests danced together.

"The story of the fifth number, 'Funeral Procession of a Marionette,' by Gounod, is told in the following: A Marionette had been killed in a duel. The funeral procession set forth, the marionettes discussing the sad death of their companion. As the march becomes long and wearisome in the midsummer weather, some of the marionettes stop to shake their thighs at a roadside tavern; they remain so long at the tavern that they find the funeral procession has nearly reached the gates of the cemetery. They attempt to rejoin the procession without undignified haste. They enter the cemetery to the same musical phrase as the one at the beginning of the march.

"The concluding number, 'Farandole,' suite No. 1, 'L'Arlesienne,' by Bizet, is an old French folk dance, danced by the peasants of southern France.

"Bizet wrote the incidental music for 'L'Arlesienne,' a drama written by Daudet. In this collaboration of music and literature, the best of French thought of this period is combined. At a later date, Bizet arranged an orchestral suite of the play, 'L'Arlesienne,' which is played by the stringed instruments only. The main theme in the 'Farandole' is an old provincial song of Christmas eve, called, 'The March of the Three Kings.' This music, depicting the virgins dance, has passages of great beauty."

SEARS, ROEBUCK ENDS GREAT YEAR

Both in volume of business and net income Sears, Roebuck and company, set new high records in 1926 and closed the year with further marked improvements in its balance sheet condition, according to a statement made public Tuesday by L. H. Beall, manager of the big Atlanta store of that company.

A net income of $21,908,120 was earned in 1926, exceeding the previous year by approximately $900,000, according to the report for that year, ending December 31, 1926. This earnings was made after allowing for depreciation, federal taxes, etc., and is equivalent to $5.21 a share earned on 4,200,000 shares of no par value stock. This compares with $20,975,304 or $4.90 a share on the present share basis in 1925.

Since 1921 the gross sales of Sears, Roebuck and company have shown a steady increase. In 1921 sales amounted to $178,014,981 and increased steadily to $272,699,214 in 1926. The net income per share increased from $1.15 in 1922 to $5.21 in 1926. Dividend requirements of $2.50 a share for 4,200,000 shares fixed for 1926, were earned more than twice over in 1926. Total assets of the company, according to the 1926 statement amounted to $173,706,257 as compared to $167,982,622 in 1925.

Gross sales for 1926 were $272,700,000 in round numbers as compared to $258,300,000 the previous year. This is an increase of 5.6 per cent.

Actual increase in net income in 1926 over 1925 was $982,816 or about 4.6 per cent which, in view of adverse conditions in the rubber market during the year and temporarily higher operating costs at two new plants, can be considered substantial and satisfactory in line with the upturn of sales, according to the report.

The Atlanta store of the company was established about one year ago and has made an excellent record, according to local officials.

The following excerpts from the statement give interesting briefs of the enormous business of the company:

"Balance sheet shows the company in a practically impregnable position and apparently prepared for almost any eventuality.

"Current assets increased during the year to $85,718,799 from $81,294,956, while current liabilities fell to $18,217,012 from $22,966,179. Ratio of current assets to current liabilities rose to 5.35 to 1 against about 4 to 1 at the end of 1925.

"Current assets included a far greater proportion of quick assets than at close of preceding year.

"Despite the increase in business done, inventories were reduced to $42,556,300 from $49,724,060, and accounts receivable showed an impressive decrease—from $19,145,132 to $10,076,721.

"The additional money collected through closer handling of receivables was put into securities, with the result that the marketable securities item reached $13,648,066 against $1,878,376 at close of 1925.

"Cash of $17,457,713 was more than double the corresponding 1925 figure of $8,547,380.

"Disregarding inventories and purchase money mortgage notes ($12,000,000), cash, marketable securities and accounts receivable at end of 1926 were over twice all liabilities (which consist of the current liabilities only).

GOVERNOR CALLS BANKING SESSION

Governor Walker will call a meeting of bankers today to negotiate loans totaling $2,600,000 for payment of school teachers for the remaining months of the present school year, he said Monday.

Four loans of $650,000 each are being sought by the governor, the first for February 5 and payable January 10, 1928, and the others as follows: March 5 payable January 20, 1928; April 5 payable February 1, 1928, and May 5 payable February 10, 1928.

The borrowed money will be used for the payment of school teachers of the state in anticipation of the payment of taxes in 1927. Under a constitutional amendment ratified at the last state election, the borrowing power of the governor was increased to $5,500,000 in order to do away with the former system of issuing discounted warrants in payment for teachers' salaries.

Under this arrangement schools of the city and county systems will receive 15 per cent each month of their annual state appropriation, State Superintendent Fort E. Lusk said.

Governor Walker spent the past week in New York, where he conferred with representatives of banking establishments regarding the impending loan.

He said the New York banks considered the state's credit exceptionally good.

Negro Must Die.

Nashville, Tenn., February 16.—(AP) Will Terrell, 21-year-old negro, was found guilty by a jury in the county criminal court today on a charge of criminal assault on the person of an aged white woman, and sentenced to electrocution. The jury was given the case about noon today and after lunch reported a verdict.

Cash alone was less than $800,000 under liabilities.

Further evidence of the conservative policy of Sears, Roebuck's management is contained in surplus account.

"Although every possible dollar was evidently charged out before accounts for the year were closed, an appropriation of $3,000,000 was made from surplus of reserve for contingencies, bringing that item after adjustments to $4,682,054, against $3,107,777 at end of 1925.

"More significant action was the appropriation of $5,000,000 for the reduction of goodwill, which had stood on the books at $30,000,000 ever since 1908. If there is any company whose surplus is worth anything, it is a leading mail order company such as Sears, as its past record amply demonstrates.

"Nevertheless, after twenty years a beginning has been made toward writing this item down, and if earnings continue satisfactory it would not be surprising to find goodwill reduced to $1 in due course.

"After all charges against it, aggregating $17,449,597, surplus account during 1926 increased over $4,400,000, and at the end of year stood at $45,807,190, or 43.68 per cent of book value of capital stock."

CHICAGO TRACTION DEFAULTS PRINCIPAL

Chicago, February 1.—(AP)—More than $171,000,000 in bonds of the Chicago surface lines fell due today, with default on the principal conceded by the lines.

The 20-year franchise expired at midnight and although uninterrupted service was arranged bondholders were promised only that interest would be paid.

A large block of the bonds due was involved in the Chicago Railways company, the north and west side lines, and it was understood that, following demand for interest and defaulting on the principal, foreclosure would be asked. The company has been in receivership several weeks. The Chicago City Railway company, is the other principal system involved.

The various lines are under a single operating company. Payments on the principal are expected to be contingent on the final settlement of the franchise situation, which has been complicated by various bids for the lines and a proposal to operate bus instead of street cars. In the meantime, up to six months, operation of the street cars in continued under a day-by-day extension of the franchise.

"New Apparel Always" Spring Weather Vagaries Met by Showerproof Coats

$35---$39.50

WEATHER keeps on happening—especially in the fickle Spring-time. Smiling skies have a way of yielding to sudden melancholia, weeping gently and softly. But even the gentlest of rains is wet, and all moisture is of harm to delicate fabrics.

But merely to protect her new Spring coat, the business woman or her active sister cannot wait on a whimsical climate.

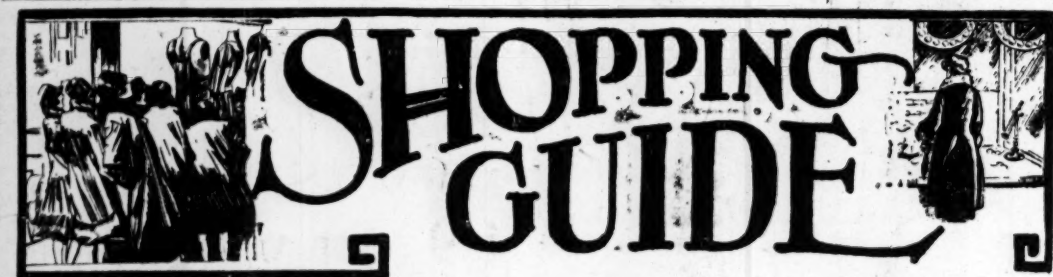

She meets it in a keen, tailored topcoat of imported showerproof tweed in her favored Spring color.

She chooses a straight-line or belted model, like the one sketched—tailored with mannish perfection and impeccable taste. It is lined with silk serge of light warmth and long wear. In black and white, brown and white, grey, tan and green. Sizes 14 to 46.

ROUTH DENIES PART IN EMBEZZLEMENT

Vigorous denial of any complicity in alleged embezzlement of funds is made by Charles A. Routh, former general manager of the McClure company, big chain-store concern, in a letter to The Constitution. Mr. Routh was arrested in Memphis Saturday night, later furnishing bond. An indictment charging embezzlement of company funds has been brought against him, according to county officials.

His letter to The Constitution follows:

"Editor Constitution: On last Saturday, while on a short visit to my relatives in Memphis, I was apprized of the fact that C. W. McClure had obtained a grand jury indictment against me charging an alleged embezzlement.

"I have come to Atlanta by the first available transportation and immediately made bond to answer this charge.

"To my friends in Atlanta and in other sections of the country, I do not, of course, have to deny this charge formally, since my record in the business world for a period of 35 years is such that no one who has had contact with me will for a moment credit this spurious and outrageous attempt at character assassination.

"At the proper time and in the proper form I will be able to demonstrate beyond a shadow of a doubt that this indictment was returned without the slightest foundation.

"I do not, of course, seek to try the case in the newspapers and I simply make this statement to my friends and to the public in order that judgment may be withheld until the true facts are presented to the proper authorities.

"I have been connected with the McClure company for approximately 15 years, during the last eight of which I have been general manager, and my record is now and has always been an open book to the company and to the public."

Southern Installs Automatic Train On Long Stretch

Along with the installation of electric automatic block signals on its line between Chattanooga and Macon, 240 miles, the Southern Railway system has just completed installation of automatic train control apparatus of the intermittent inductive type, designed to enforce obedience to the signals and to stop a train in the event the engineer is incapacitated or overlooks a signal, it was announced Tuesday.

The Southern already has automatic signals and train control on its line between Cincinnati and Chattanooga, 238 miles, giving it the longest stretch of track protected by automatic train control now in service anywhere in the world.

The signal installation between Chattanooga and Macon required construction of a transmission line of three high voltage wires, carrying an alternating current of 4,400 volts and an average of four low voltage wires for signal operation and 400 signals of the upper quadrant, three position, semaphore type. For the train control an equal number of inductors were installed on the track, one at each signal and 75 locomotives were equipped with the engine part of the device.

EGYPTIAN NOBLES ARE DISSATISFIED WITH COURT RULE

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Cairo, Egypt, February 1.—Members of the Egyptian royal family are dissatisfied with the law enacted in 1922 establishing a royal court council to control all matters of personal status affecting princes and princesses. King Fuad is head of the council which advises him. Thus, the princes and princesses must obtain King Fuad's sanction to marry and in event they do not follow his advice they risk the loss of their rank, which, it is stipulated, they are liable to do if they marry persons not of royal rank.

One prince who married an English girl already has been deprived of his rank. The princes and princesses object to their personal affairs, such as marriage, divorce, and guardianship, being subject to the royal court council, the abolition of which they seek, demanding treatment in those respects exactly the same as any other Egyptian subject.

Some have bands on the brim and crowns, others have not. Maybe the difference is just the buttonhole in the lapel of the coat.

Just look closely—make sure that you have found the Twins, then send in your answer. Somebody who finds the right Twins is going to win a big cash prize. Make that somebody be YOU!

Starring Dulcie Jayne

By VIRGINIA TRACY.

SYNOPSIS.

Cornelia Marsh, employed in the scenario department of Hertzog's motion picture studio at Fort Lee, hears with sorrow that Henry Horner, the head of the department, has been fired by Lyman Hertzog, son of the owner of the studio. Every one knows that Lyman is jealous of Henry because he is in love with Dulcie Jayne, the star of the studio, but Dulcie seems to prefer her director, Daniel Z. Leland.

INSTALLMENT IX.

MRS. MARSH'S LIFE PRESERVER.

Nothing else happened. Lyman did not step on the little fan nor grind it under his heel, as they might have finished off the scene in the studio. He did not even kick it out of his way, though Cornelia seemed to feel his foot touching it, it was so near. He did nothing. Except smile.

Thus smiling, standing quite still with his hands in his pockets and looking down at the little installment plan fan that had no mistress, he again started whistling his favorite tune. After a phrase or two he let the whistle break into words, which he sang softly,

Her kisses come too high for you,
She hasn't got a heart to cry for you,
I'll tell your girl goodbye for you . . .

and passed on into his father's office.

Mr. Horner's large, shapely hand picked up the box, picked up the fan. Enveloping the fan with loops of turquoise chain, he put it carefully into the jeweler's cotton and, precisely refitting the cover of the box, once more placed it with the things he was going to take home.

Then he looked up, saw Miss Jacobs standing there waiting for the list of new books, as she had been standing since, let us say, before the war, and smiled at her gayly. Oh, gayly!

When in distress, give a party. Little Mrs. Marsh had never formulated this creed in words, but we have somewhere been told that actions speak louder. And whenever the world began to throw cold water on this gallant septuagenarian—a small, eager and, elegant and chirpy, with very white hair and very black eyes—she reached for festivity as for a life preserver.

On the day following that in which Cornelia had brought home the hard word that she was to lose Mr. Horner, there appeared upon the horizon of the Bronx flat that sized cloud which is generally spoken of in connection with a man's hand—one of the two lodgers gave notice.

Hopping about her housework with the perky energy of a canary bird and with the same greed of sunshine, Mrs. Marsh just said to herself that she and Cornelia wouldn't wait till Sunday for their regular weekly movie, they would go tonight.

Perhaps a romantic streak ran in the family. For in Cornelia, at 45, ardently desired to look at rivers on her way to work, so Mrs. Marsh, at 70, just as ardently desired to sparkle. You see, and, festivity, in Lionel Marsh's days, had been round her like a nest. To the wife of Marc-Antony-Romeo they had formed a mood not of nervous tension for special occasions, but of protected peace for a home. Pitched neck and crop into hustling and terror, into the struggle for bread and for breath, when she and her little girl looked back to Eden their wistfulness sought no garden and secluded homestead, but thronged hotels, mirrored, many-windowed suites lit by glittering chandeliers and faving, gala-wise, on the chief squares of cities; they saw themselves in the midst of long, gleaming corridors rich with red velvet carpets; restaurants like state apartments, all bright and all bedecked with flowers and festivity.

In the Marc-Antony-Romeo days whatever happened, from a week's record-breaking business to a bad notice, you immediately ordered something for everybody to eat and drink. Wherever you went, you went in a swarm—an attendant swarm. And whenever anything touched you, and whatever it was, money flowed from you as from an enchanted fountain, that being largely, indeed, what you were for. Thus it came about that to Mrs.

Marsh the spending of money was water to the gills of a fish; she began to breathe freely as she felt it flow. And though nowadays her lungs went mostly dry, she was, in a sense, extremely provident; she could not with a sip. Any sort of public gayety, even a holiday in a park, she could use as a lark to her own vanished kingdom; the scantiest and most bargain-counter luxury, like a hot chocolate at some shiny soda fountain on a cold day, she could gather to her like a warm cloak against the winds of fear. Though not so deep as a well nor as wide as a church door, these were enough; they served.

The Bronx flat, rightly seen, was just a station or, as her youth would have said, a depot, where Mrs. Marsh and her daughter were waiting with a certain amount of inconvenience, of worry even, for their train. It was late, but trains often were. And once they got aboard their car—Cornelia's car, now—they would travel smooth again. As the window of Marc-Antony-Romeo and the mother of a promising young authoress with a bright future before her, Mrs. Marsh still thought of herself as a person with ample grounds for sparkling.

For if Mr. Horner had rejected Cornelia's which was to have acted as engine to their train, hadn't he also praised it? Praised it so much that he would probably have accepted it when it was re-written? To keep saying that there would never be another Henry Horner and that it was no use trying to signal the attention of any ordinary scenario editor with an original got you nowhere! There was something poor spirited in Cornelia's insistence that if you threw your original into the sea, instead of the scenario department, you did at least save postage. Cornelia had once showed her mother a statement in a trade journal that, out of four hundred original scenarios submitted to the motion picture industry during a year, one had been accepted. And this article had cheered Mrs. Marsh immensely, there being to her mind one reason why "Brian Rose" should be that one.

There were other stars in the world besides Dulcie Jayne, and Mrs. Marsh herself would have preferred Dulcie; only, Mrs. Marsh wanted a little money. Suppose Cornelia should say that if she couldn't sell "Brian Rose" to Dulcie she didn't care to sell it to anybody? A daughter with the temperament of a writer is a strange thing! More unpredictable than lodgers themselves! Mrs. Marsh did not sigh. But she promised herself that, since the day was turning very warm, this evening, after the picture, she and Cornelia would take transfers over to the Broadway bus and ride down Riverside to see the lights.

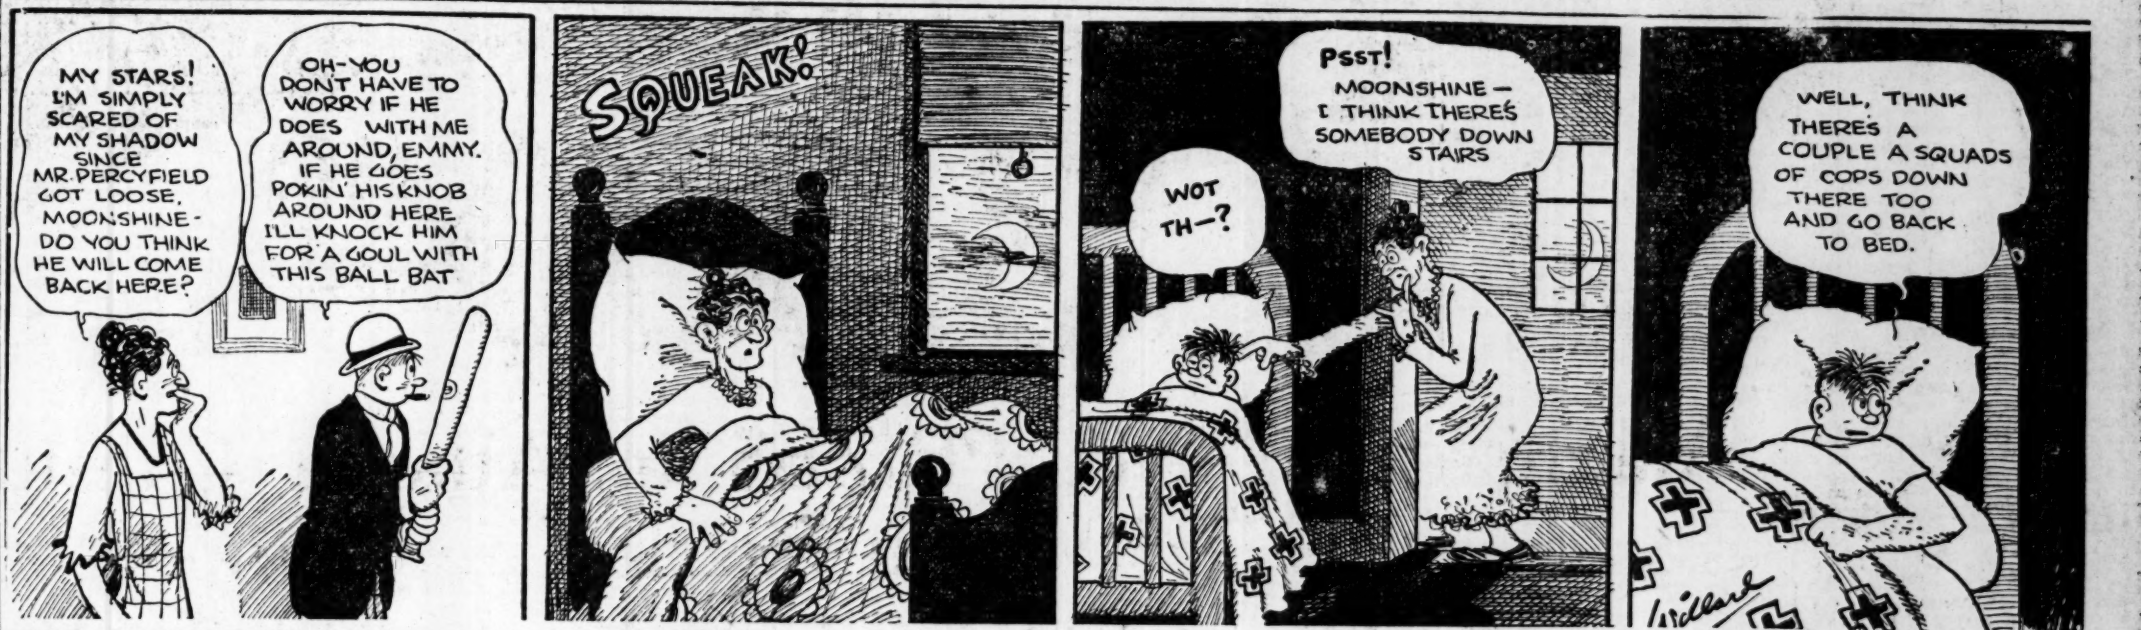

Probably, on the west coast the studio restaurant is all that is made out to be for picturesque variety of costume and the leveling of rank; in that more lavish and scrambling game, cast may look at kings, and the little mice under their chairs stare close at kings and cast round the same table. But a Hertzog star would as soon have thought of eating off the floor as in the restaurant. Maids with electric stoves served luncheon to the elect in their dressing rooms, a waiter brought Mr. Hertzog cold meat and a glass of milk in his office, Lyman, jumping into his car, generally for the nearest roadhouse, and the restaurant was largely left to pelves getting from five hundred a week down. In winter Cornelia would have to forego her furthest below the salt, but in the fine weather she had a lonely, favorite bower for communion with her mother's sandwiches and thermos bottle.

New Orleans, February 1.—(P)—The cotton market just about recovered yesterday's losses in today's trading. Offerings were light, and the price trend was upward due to a favorable weather, prospects for unsettled weather in the southern spot situation. May contracts, which had sold off from 13.44 at the close Saturday to 13.44, the low point yesterday afternoon, rallied to 13.55. The general market closed steady with a point, the best showing net advances of 8 to 10 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 2 points in response to relatively some what and the best prices of the day were touched in late trading, March selling at 13.34 and October at 13.97. Part of the buying here during the day was attributed to price-fixing on cotton sold for export to Liverpool and there was also some buying supposed to be for European trade account. Aside from that demand was attributed chiefly to covering by shorts, who were influenced by the apparent absence of southern selling pressure.

According to some local brokers, there has been considerable selling recently either in liquidation of long accounts or for a reaction on a theory that southern spot market would weaken after the filling of January engagements. Part of today's buying was supposed to represent covering of such sales owing to private reports of an unchanged or steady spot basis.

Total bond sales, (par value)	$17,000,000.

New Orleans, February 1.—(By the Associated Press.)—A renewal of heavy buying gave the bond market a firm tone today. Ready absorption of a large volume of new offerings indicated that the investment demand was far from satisfied. Prices in most domestic issues moved upward, while profit taking was directed against some foreign bonds which have been advancing for several weeks. Sales totaled about $17,000,000.

A point gain in Western Maryland 6s, stimulated by the activity of the company's stock, featured trading in railway liens. While there were evidences of realizing, especially in Illinois Central 4 3/4s and Seaboard Adjusting 5s, most of the high grade and secondary rails received good support. Missouri Pacific 6s per cent obligations, which are to be redeemed through the company's new $95,000,000 issue, were in good demand.

Aside from considerable buying of Barnsdall sinking fund 6s and Sinclair Oil bonds, industrials were quiet. Prices in the utility group were steady with the demand light.

Selling pressure was felt by a long line of European bonds, including French and Belgian issues which have been hovering near peak prices. United Kingdom 5 1/2s fell back a point, and losses also were sustained by Italian liens and Japanese 6 1/2s. Except for a material gain in Brazilian 8s, Latin American securities fell off fractionally.

Demand was light in the federal government group, and prices were irregular in a narrow range.

Sale of the new $95,000,000 issue of the Missouri Pacific railroad was reported within half an hour after the bonds were opened.

New offerings expected shortly include $10,000,000 of serial notes for the J. L. Hudson company, Detroit.

Public offering of $27,500,000 Republic of Chile 6 per cent external sinking fund gold bonds, due February 1, 1961, will be made tomorrow at 93 3/4 by a syndicate headed by Hallgarten & Co. The proceeds are to be used for public works.

The Day in Finance

By R. L. BARNUM

New York, February 1.—Some profit taking developed today after the upward price movement of the last three days but the market nevertheless lessened, probably reflecting in part the very heavy partly digested overhanging new corporation financing. Three companies alone, General Motors, Missouri Pacific and Consolidated Gas, are raising $203,000,000 through new securities just offered or about to be offered.

Stocks are sold until the market becomes overbought. Then stocks are bought until the market becomes overbought. For the trader having certain characteristics and the time to stand over the stock ticker from 10 until 3 o'clock profits may be made in such a so-called "traders' market."

But the average outside trader has not the time necessary to give to such a market and moreover he has not the right characteristics to take advantage of a "traders' market" for it is necessary to buy on weak spots and sell on strong spots. The average outside trader does exactly the opposite and consequently "gets hung up" in a traders' market.

Leadership Lacking.

It is being widely said that what the stock market lacks is leadership. Leadership in the stock market would not be lacking if there was a definite price trend. The stock market lacks is definite news either bullish or bearish. This is about what the National City bank says in its February 1 report. This authority points out that 1927 has made a good beginning but adds "it is recognized as too early to gauge the tendencies of the year with much accuracy and the attitude of business generally is one of making haste slowly until the course of spring industry and trade is more clearly defined."

J. P. Morgan, George F. Baker and John J. Mitchell, of Chicago, have been appointed as Pullman directors committee to work out plans for forming a new company and exchanging the stock of the new company for that of the Pullman sleeping car and equipment manufacturing companies. All three of these men have been large stockholders and directors of Pullman for years. Pullman stockholders can go to sleep without making any protest on the make up of this committee.

Brokers Are Held Liable For Ads

New Corporation Financing Licens Stock Market Despite Profit-Taking Developing After Upward Swing.

New York, February 1.—(P)—Decision of the appellate division of the state supreme court holding investment houses financially responsible for misleading or false advertising in promotion of securities sales, makes many Wall street firms liable for transactions involving billions of dollars. The New York World says today.

The decision reverses the assumption held by many financial houses that the advertising phrase saying the information given but that it has been obtained from sources believed to be reliable, is indication of sufficient good faith. The World asserts.

Under the decision the Continental Insurance company and the Fidelity Fire Insurance company have the right to be repaid for losses alleged to have been incurred in purchase of $200,000 worth of bonds from the Equitable Trust company.

The Equitable Trust company was the house of issue for $4,500,000 bonds of the Green Star Steamship company. The two insurance companies each invested $100,000 in the issue. The steamship company later defaulted on its bonds.

The Equitable company refused to indemnify the insurance companies for the loss of their investment. The insurance companies filed suit. The state supreme court ruled that there was cause of action the Equitable appealed. The appellate division's decision permits trial in the lower court.

A few attorneys for years have advised Wall street clients to place little faith in any disclaimer of responsibility. The World asserts. Lawyers have suggested only statements for which houses of issue had positive justification and to accept responsibility for such statements.

J. P. Morgan and company, and Kuhn Loeb and company, the largest private houses in the financial district, follow this course. The disclaimer circles do not contain the disclaimer phrase.

LIVINGTON & CO.

New York, February 1.—The morning's strength was carried over into the afternoon. Western Maryland and Wheeling & Lake Erie continued to advance sharply on big activity. The rest of the market was well supported, with the oil stocks showing a reaction. The selling was only the realizing which follows three or four days of strength and was without significance. A Washington dispatch quoted Mr. Love as having told an interstate commerce commission committee that he had not yet decided to buy control of Wheeling & Lake Erie through the purchase of stock. Call money continued to hold at 4 per cent. The market should meet a little more realizing in the morning. The thinking the leading stocks may be purchased on weakness.

FENNER & DEANE.

Low-priced rails and oils gave a good account of themselves today in a market that was otherwise without feature. Western Maryland, which appears to be in the same position that Wheeling & Lake Erie was at these levels advanced more than 20 under heavy buying. Wheeling preferred, which is convertible into common, moved up more than $10. Rubber stocks displayed a little strength on a moderate turnover. Motor stocks hesitated, although they did not turn weak. Asphalt gained about $2. Houston Oil continued yesterday's advance for 3 points. Money ruled at 4 per cent and there are still possibilities of a reduction in the discount rate. The trend appears to be upward and the principal liquidation is to be expected. A little profit-taking appearing before the close. Total sales $1,503,300.

New York, February 1.—(By the Associated Press.)—Stock prices turned irregular late today after an early period of strength. Late selling represented profit-taking by floor traders who had bought stocks "for a turn," and the inevitable heavy selling which accompanies every rally of importance. Both the rail and industrial averages closed practically unchanged on the day, although rather wide movements took place in a number of issues in each group. Trading showed a moderate increase in volume, total sales running close to one and one-half million shares.

Easy credit conditions, reflected in the shading of the 4 per cent call rate in the outside market, the decrease of over $88,000,000 in brokers' loans last week and the prompt over-subscription of new bond offerings, provided the background for the advance. Talk was again heard of a possible decrease in the New York federal reserve discount rate at Thursday's meeting of the board of directors. The monthly bank reviews took a rather optimistic view of the business situation, which helped to inspire confidence.

Standard Industrials, such as U. S. Steel common, General Motors, Baltimore & Ohio, American Can, Allied Chemical, American Smelting and Woodworth all lost ground, the net losses ranging from fractions to 1 1/2 points. However, such specialties as Freeport, Texas, Texas Gulf Sulphur, National Supply, R. H. Macy, Warren Bros. and General Outdoor Advertising certificates sold to their highest prices in a year, or longer. American Ship and Commerce and the Southern Dairies issues touched new lows.

Further accumulation in the rubber shares probably was inspired by further reduction of 10 per cent in output under the Stevenson plan. Ajax again changed hands in large volume touching 12 3/8, the highest price since last March. U. S. Rubber and B. F. Goodrich closed about a point higher. Buying of the oils was of a selective character, Houston and Producers and Refiners common and preferred, being pushed into new high ground, while Marland, Pan American BA and some of the other popular shares receded slightly.

Speculative activity in the rails centered in a few of the so-called "merger issues." Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred was the star performer, soaring 10 3/4 points to another new high record of 74 3/4. The common receded 65 to a new top. Western Maryland and common and second preferred each soared over 60 points to new peak quotations, and sharp gains also were recorded by Peoria & Eastern, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, and Louisville & Nashville. On the basis of returns already in, it is expected that combined net operating income of class 1 railroads in December will show a drop of about 10 per cent below the same month of 1925.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent all day, but loans as low as 3 3/4 were reported in the "outside market." Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Another rapid advance in Spanish pesos, which carried them to a new peak at 16.85 cents, was the only change of consequence in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled at $4.84 5/8 and French francs around 33 3/4 cents.

Commodity prices were mixed. Wheat and cotton options improved slightly, but coffee and sugar prices lost ground.

Civil War Veteran Regains Memory Lost During Battle

St. Paul, Minn., February 1.—(AP)—A story of how a Civil War veteran lost his memory in a battle between the north and south and suddenly regained it more than 60 years later, was told today at the government pension claims department of the state adjutant general's office.

As a result, Leopold Newsalts, 84, formerly of Dayton, Ohio, but now living in Owatonna, Minn., is placing a claim for pension dating back to his discharge from the Union army for disability.

With the sight of one eye destroyed, his memory gone and his identity forgotten, Newsalts was discharged from the army, and became a wanderer, living unaware that he had served in the war and even forgetting the existence of Dayton, his boyhood home.

Eleven months ago, shortly after he had a piece of shell removed from his head, he heard a man on a train mention "Dayton, Ohio." Almost in a flash, he says, he recalled the days preceding his disability.

He wrote to Dayton and learned that a brother, Jacob, had moved to Owatonna many years before. He wrote to Owatonna and learned from his sister-in-law, whom he had never met, that Jacob had died about 18 years ago. He proved his identity to her satisfaction by the family record contained in an old Bible.

His claim for back pension, amounting to thousands of dollars, will be entered soon as the proper records are assembled.

BIRMINGHAM PASTOR GETS ATLANTA CALL

Birmingham, Ala., February 1.—(AP)—The Rev. R. G. Hershey, pastor of Woodlawn Presbyterian church here, has received a call from the Peachtree Road Presbyterian church of Atlanta, he said today. Dr. Hershey said he would announce his decision on Sunday.

The Peachtree Road Presbyterian church pastorate was vacated several weeks ago, when Dr. F. D. Stevenson resigned to go to Gadsden, Ala., it was said. According to reports here, Dr. Stevenson will take up evangelistic work in Alabama.

Several important matters relative to the school and alumni association will be taken up at the business session, it was stated and every member of the association is urged to be present. GERMANY AGREES TO DESTROY FORTS

Paris, February 1.—(AP)—The last important question pending between Germany and France under the Versailles treaty not otherwise disposed of was settled today, when an agreement was reached between the German and French governments and the ambassadors of the two nations relative to the dismantling of fortifications in the region of Koenigsberg.

This agreement has ended a controversy that lasted since allied control of military affairs in Germany began in 1920. It brings to a termination the work of the international military control mission in Germany and reduces the activities of the allied military control mission in Germany.

All questions concerning Germany's military establishment will now go to the council of the League of Nations, which will exercise what supervision is necessary through a commission, of which General Henri Dettmer, of the French, was originally chosen as head.

Destruction of fortifications at Koenigsberg and Glogau, in Prussia, and 22 fortified works near Koenigsberg is involved in the agreement. The German government gives assurance that no other fortifications exist except those recognized by the allies, and engages not to construct others.

GANGSTER FOES PLACID IN COURT

Quincy, Ill., February 1.—(AP)—Foes of each other and enemies of the law in federal court here today, despite testimony intended by those on the one hand to send the others to the federal prison, in the trial of the three Shelton brothers for mail robbery. The quiet courtroom demeanor did not allow the tension outside when it became known that the Sheltons, Carl, Earl and Bernie, planned the robbery of the mails at Collinsville, Ill., January 27, 1925, when $15,000 shipped to the Collinsville State bank was stolen.

Previously, however, James Mathias, the mail messenger, had been unable to identify any of the Sheltons involved.

Newman said the Sheltons hatched the robbery plot in the Arlington hotel, East St. Louis, and sought the use of his automobile for the robbery. He refused, he said.

Birger testified that the Sheltons divided the loot at the roadside. The government rested with the conclusion of Birger's testimony, and the defense will begin tomorrow. It is the defense contention that accusation of the Sheltons was engendered by the desire of their enemies to see them out of the way.

Sergeant Jim Mills, At Soldiers' Home, Answers Last Roll

BY BILL SHIPPEN.
Sergeant Jim Mills, who has called the roll at the Confederate Soldiers' Home ever since the greatest veteran can remember, died early Tuesday. At day-break he heard another call from thinning grey ranks he answered:

"Sergeant Jim," Company F, Fifty-sixth Georgia Regiment. His comrades knew him for soldier, but the guns have long been silent.

"Uncle Jim," the youngsters called him since, watching shavings curl from a hickory bow and arrow, eyeing a big fine pop-gun shaping in his hands. In every part of the country children knew his toys, for James M. Mills was a busy man, carrying on a brisk mail order trade in toys with young customers; then, too, he gave out the mail at the Home, kept tabs on the laundry bags, and he called the roll daily for 26 years.

The veteran was born in 1842 at Marietta, where he is to be buried in the Confederate cemetery. This afternoon at 1:30 funeral services will be conducted from the chapel of H. M. Patterson and Son, Rev. George L. King, of the Martha Brown Memorial church, will officiate.

Cotton Contest Winners Honor Guests at Dinner

Make the farms self sustaining by raising first the feed and necessities—then cotton as a surplus money crop, and the problem of cheap cotton will be solved, G. Mont Adams, Texas "cotton king," told the cotton contest winners of the south, at the banquet given in their honor by the Chilean nitrate of soda educational bureau, Tuesday night at the Atlanta Biltmore.

The winners of cotton contests in all southern states were in Atlanta Tuesday as the guests of the Chilean nitrate organization, and left Tuesday night for Washington, where they will be presented to President Coolidge by William N. Jardine, secretary of agriculture.

The visitors were addressed by Dr. Andrew M. Soule, head of the State College of Agriculture, at Athens, who told them that he saw the day approaching at last when the master farmer would be equally recognized with the masters of any other industry.

Mr. Adams, winner of the Dallas News contest in Texas, winner of the first upland staple prize, second state-wide staple prize, and second gross income prize, and generally regarded as the most successful cotton raiser in the south, attained a yield of 8,081 pounds from five acres—the largest yield per acre ever recorded. He laid his success to the making of his farm self sustaining, which increased its value from $15 to $150 per acre in a few years, and pointed out that in regarding cotton as a surplus, or money crop, the farmer was independent of low prices resulting from overplanting.

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale welcomed the agriculturalists to Atlanta, saying that it was they who made cities like Atlanta possible, and C. A. Cobb, editor of the "Southern Ruralist" compared past injustices to the farmer with the near future time "when you will be accorded the square deal which you merit."

Mr. O. A. Powell-Malcolm, southern leader of the home demonstration department in Washington, and Victor H. Schoffeleers, agricultural editor of the Dallas News, also addressed the gathering. Herbert C. Brewer was toastmaster.

Winners of the various contests present were: Miss Ella Daniels, winner of Nacogdoches county and state club contest; G. Mont Adams, Texas "cotton king"; Charles Adams, Bruno, Ark., first prize, Louisiana; J. M. Fulghum, Utica, Miss., second prize, Mississippi; Guy Tarrell, Brownsville, Texas, first prize, Texas; R. H. Smith, Johnston, S. C., second prize, South Carolina; George T. Swearingin, first prize, South Carolina; George W. Dozier, second prize, Georgia; L. L. Smith, Doerun, Ga., third prize, Georgia; and J. J. Marchant, Doerun, Ga., fourth Georgia prize.

'SMOKE ABATEMENT' WEEK IS ANNOUNCED

At a meeting of the smoke abatement league held Tuesday in the Chamber of Commerce building the week of February 28 to March 5, was set aside as "smoke abatement week." Mayor Ragsdale will issue a proclamation calling on all citizens to lend their support to the movement, according to report of Mrs. John H. Hornady, chairman of a committee appointed at the last meeting to solicit the mayor's cooperation.

A committee was appointed to arrange the program for smoke abatement week. This committee is composed of Mrs. R. L. L. Turman, chairman; Mrs. D. O. Coghill, Mrs. Tully Brooke, Mrs. A. M. Swagerty, Mrs. Rue S. Addis, E. Bunnell, Raymond Shaw, A. C. Sprinks and C. C. Glenn.

A big parade will probably be staged during the early part of the week, probably on Monday, including brass bands and floats representing various organizations and mercantile and industrial enterprises.

Smoke Inspector A. W. Jones will lead a daily exhibit during the entire week, with a series of stoves and heaters, and demonstrate the great smoke reduction that can be obtained from a little care in firing and also the large saving of fuel.

Mrs. Newton D. Wing, prominent in the work of the National Better Homes society, will bring the idea of smoke abatement and fuel saving before the children's matinee.

RATIONALISM HIT BY REV. O. J. SMITH

Radical teachings in Canada and the United States, too much money and lack of law enforcement were cited by Rev. Oswald J. Smith, Canadian evangelist, in his sermon at the Gospel tabernacle on Capitol avenue Tuesday night as three principal evils which are driving multitudes away from God.

"In my country and your country they have begun to teach evolution instead of religion, rationalism instead of Christianity, and the results are exemplified in the death of that poor college boy the other day, who took his own life after he had sought thrill after thrill until there were no more to find," he said.

The preacher asserted that everywhere he goes in the large cities he quickly observes that many of the young people are gripped in the mad whirl of pleasure, and seem bent upon having their thrills at any cost. "We have too much money," he declared, "and the young people are spending millions in the pursuit of pleasures in contrast to their forefathers, who worked and worshipped."

Decrying lawlessness, he laid responsibility for much of it upon lax law enforcement. "The law is being ignored, crimes of every sort being committed, and the majority of the criminals are still free," he declared.

"If there is not stricter enforcement of the law it will not be long before conditions will be so unspeakable that God may come with another deluge."

Revival services will continue at the tabernacle twice daily, except Saturday, through the remainder of the week, with a special musical program at each service.

TEACHERS UPHELD, END THEIR STRIKE

Union City, Tenn., February 1.—(AP) Settlement of a dispute which has raged in Union City for several days over the expulsion of five boys from the high school, and the subsequent resignation of the school faculty when the school board refused to abide by its action, was amicably made here today.

The mayor and commissioners, taking the matter from the trustees' hands, ruled that it would pay no other teachers than the ones who had resigned, and asked the teachers to compromise the expulsions to "indefinite suspensions."

The arrangement has been adjudged satisfactory with both the faculty and the trustees, and school will resume tomorrow after two days of "vacation."

Five boys—all of whose families are prominent in the affairs of the city, were expelled by Superintendent C. K. Wilkerson when he found they had stolen examination questions. The school board refused to "back him up," it was brought out, and other teachers resigned when he signified that he had done so.

Under terms of the settlement the five boys will be "indefinitely suspended" and Wilkerson is empowered to say when they will be reinstated.
